Central High presents the Keys to Happiness. The development of most avenues to future enjoyment is started in schools, particularly high school, and Central provides excellent opportunity for fashioning these keys. In the 1936 Maroon and White, there is something of interest to everyone. And so . . . .

PREFACE

In this section of our yearbook, we wish to state the aims in producing this 1936 Maroon and White. Our first purpose is to bring back memories of the happy and useful days spent in the Castle on the Hill. Our second goal is to demonstrate what great opportunities are available to us in Central High, and to remind each reader of the benefits which these advantages give to later efforts.

In our Annual will be found the story of the many avenues of pursuit followed by our knights and ladies. The numerous sports which are of interest to alumni and friends as well as students; organizations of various natures and their accomplishments during the year; the senior, junior and sophomore classes of 1936 . . . . these are our keys to happiness.

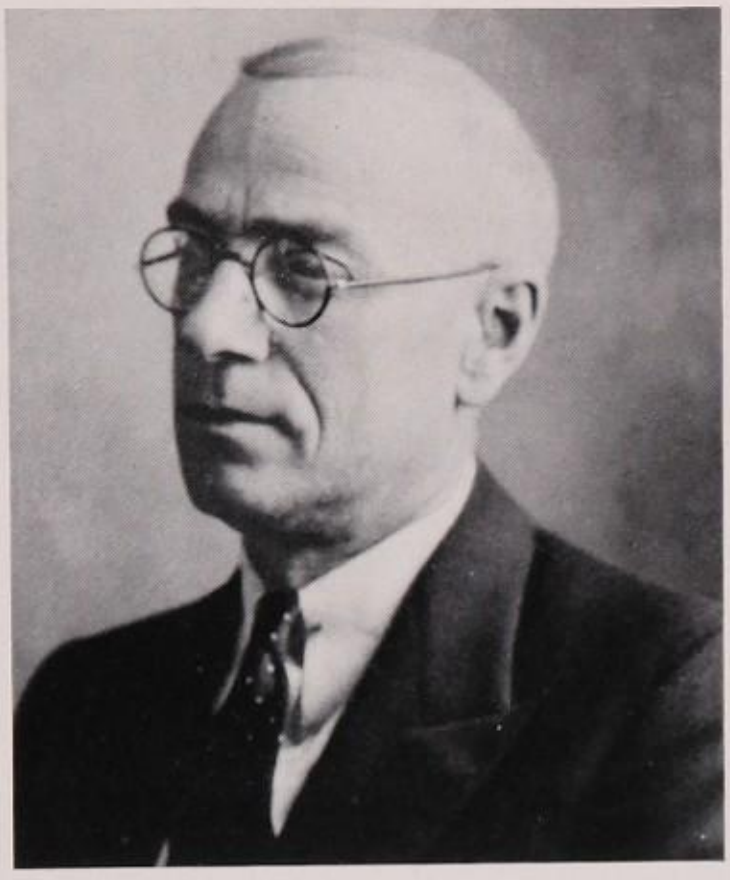
DEDICATION

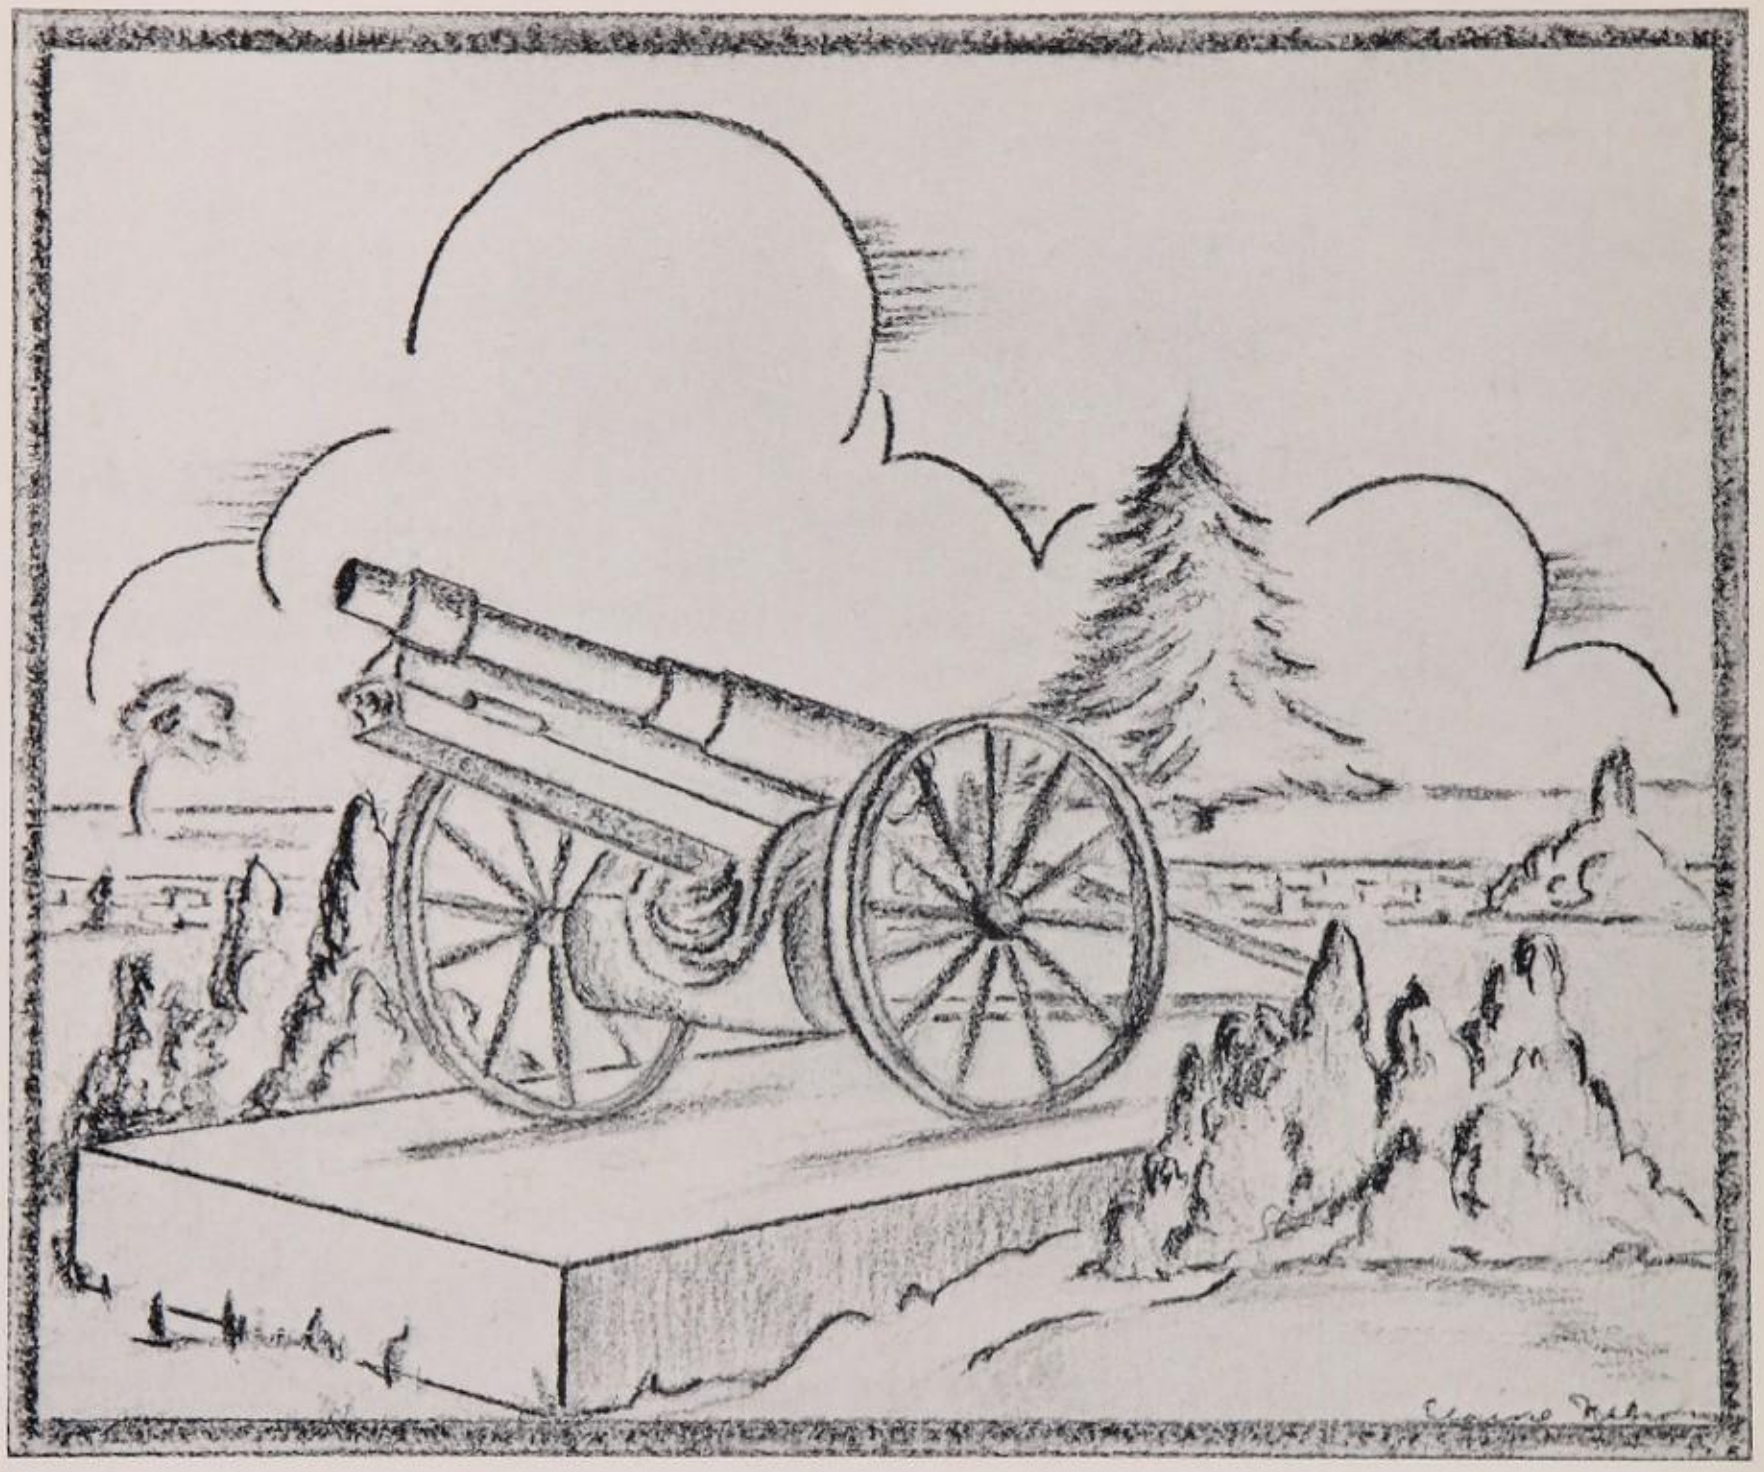


In order to attain happiness one must possess some of the Keys to Happiness. One of the essential keys is the art of knowing how to cooperate and live with others.

Each task to which Mr. Littlejohn is assigned, whether it be significant or insignificant, large or small, important or trivial, is treated with his individual attention and is considered as a direct responsibility by him. If his personality radiated only this one quality, no finer lesson could be gained by both faculty and students than the value of cooperation.

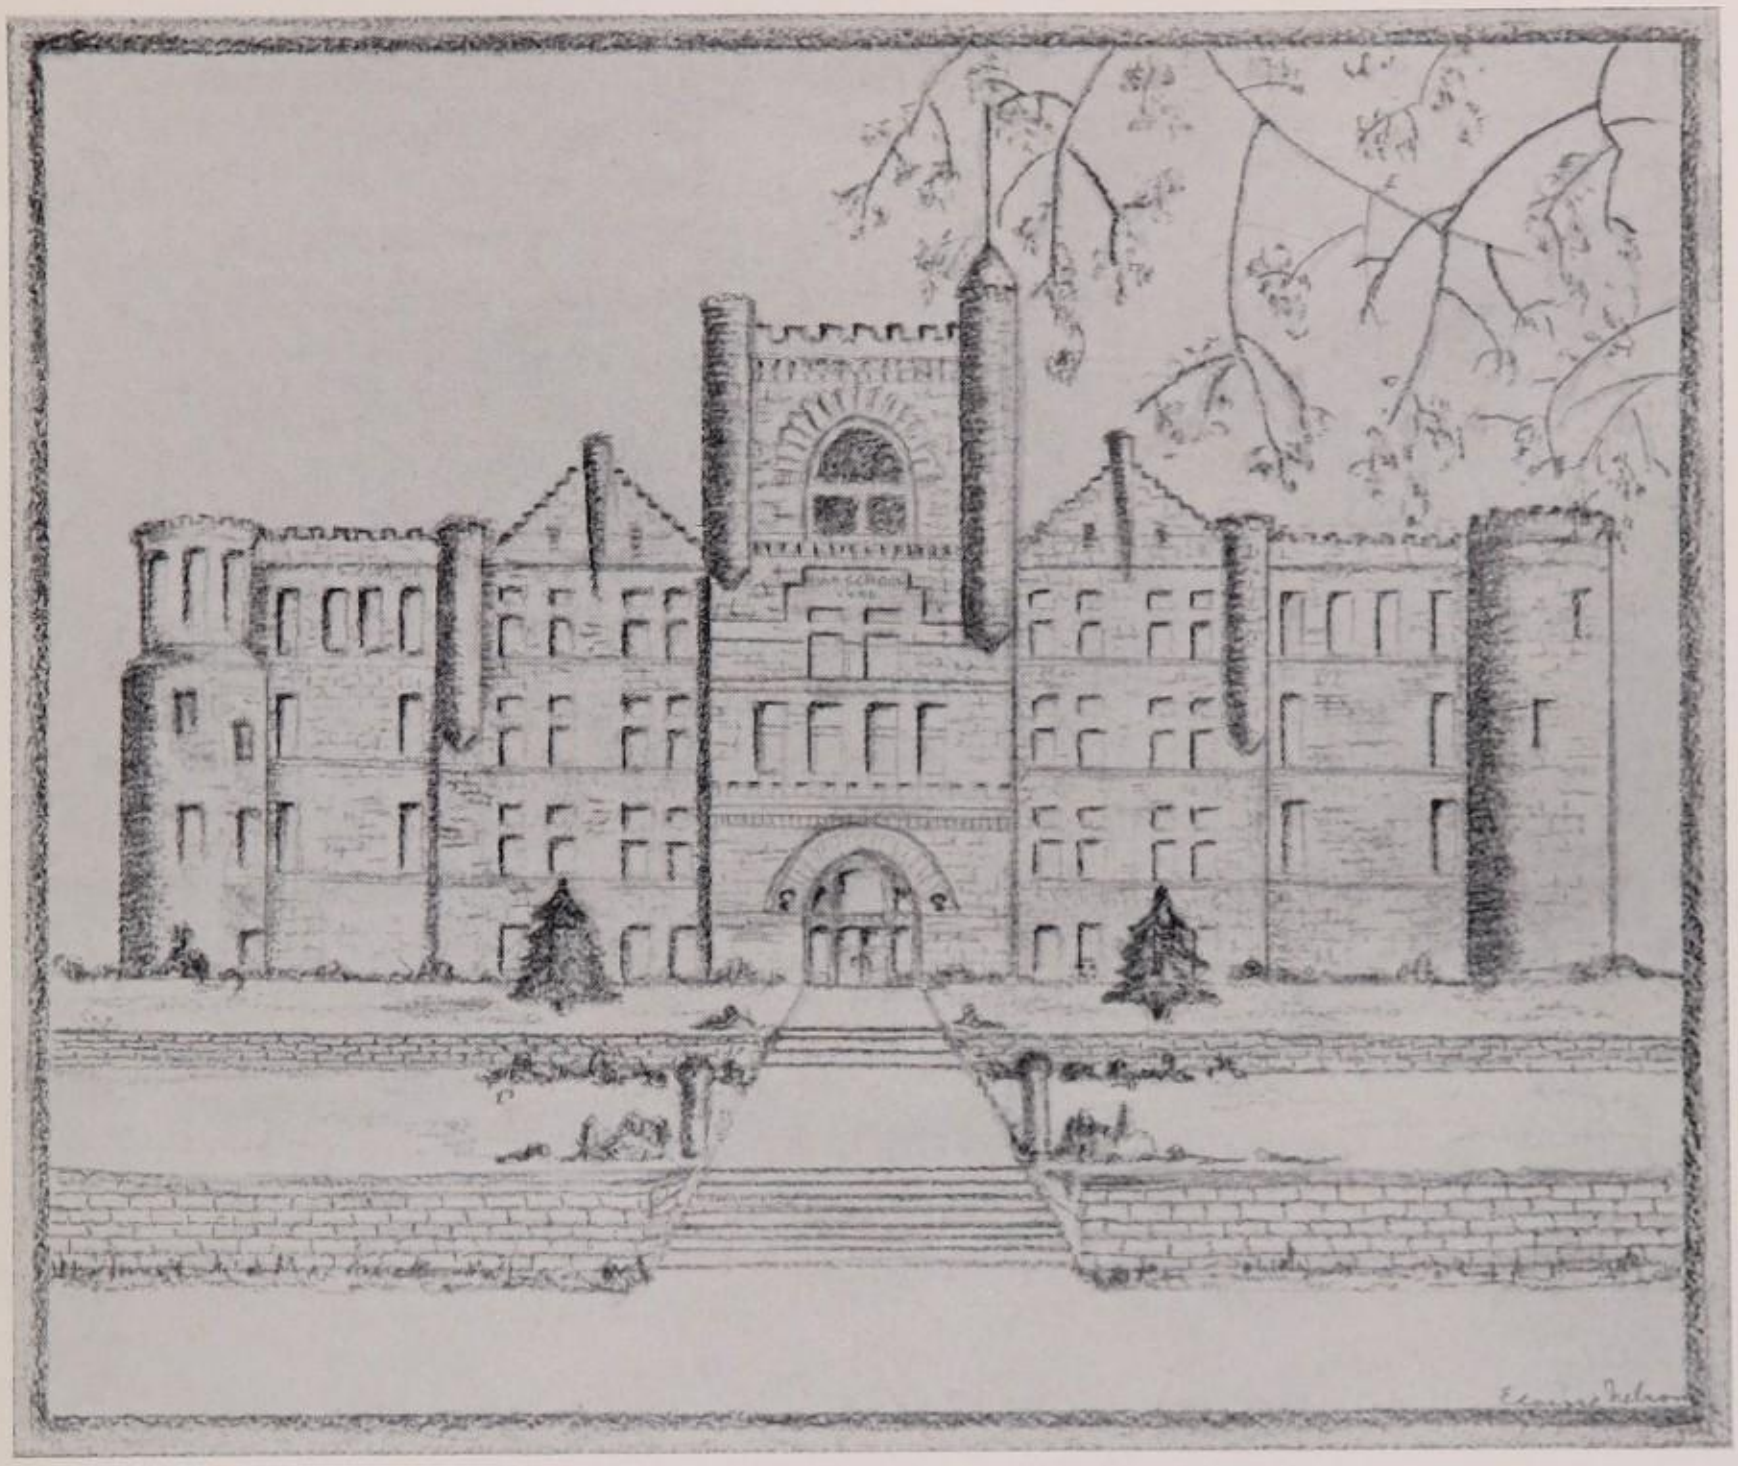
In view of this we, therefore, wish to pay tribute to this sterling quality in dedicating our 1936 Maroon and White to

MR. M. L. LITTLEJOHN.



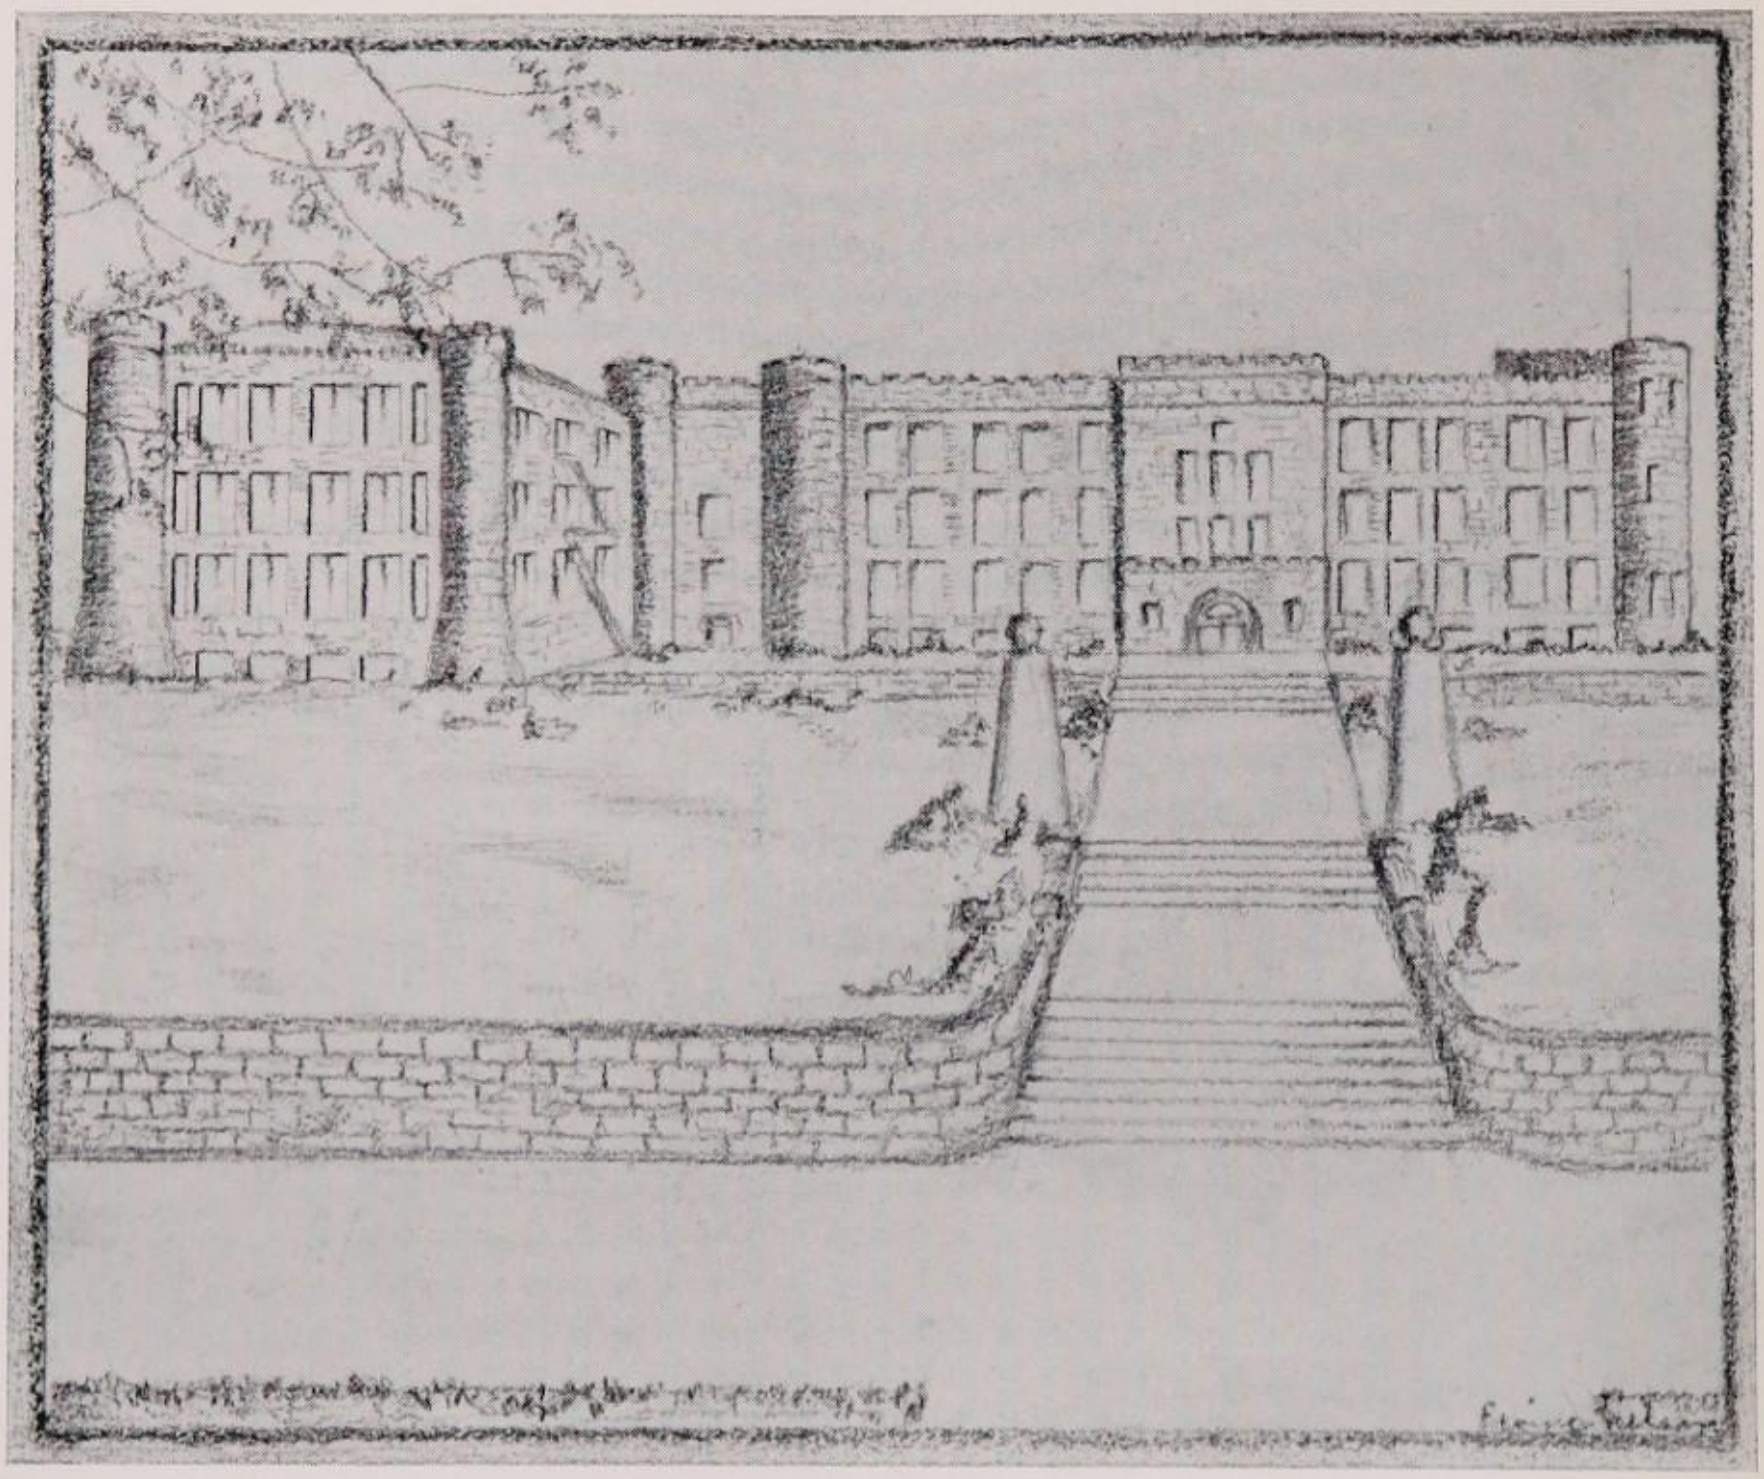
THE CANNON

Gazing southward ever mute,
The rushing masses you salute.
With empty breech and silent bore,
You stand guard o'er our southern door.



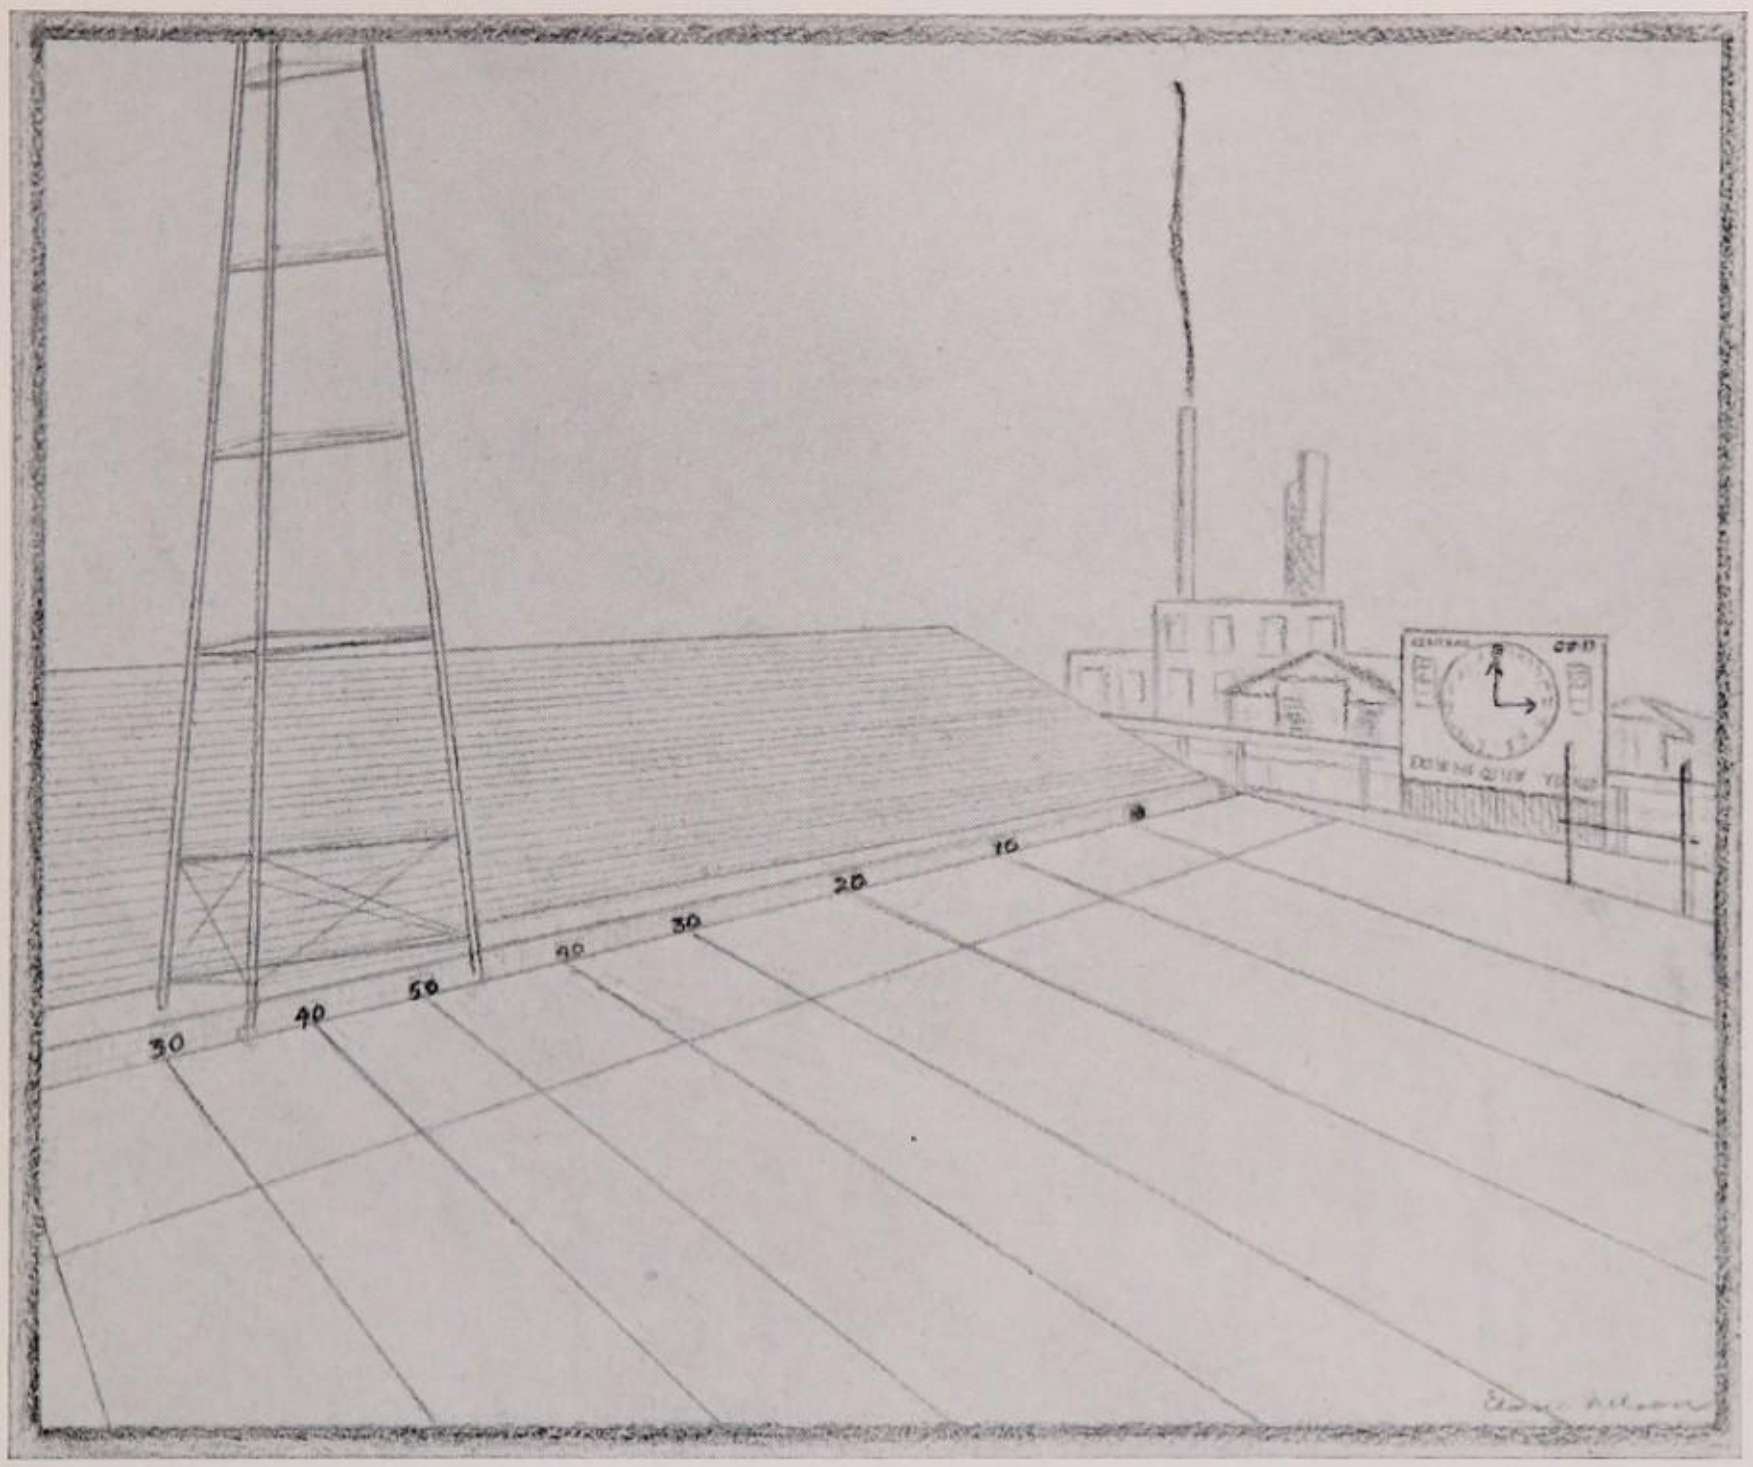
THE SOUTH FRONT

Built when Sioux City was young,
Your main entrance to the south was swung.
You welcome all who pass within
To study, so the world they may win.



THE WEST SIDE

Awaiting every setting sun
You watch to see that all are won
To love of this old castle dear,
And of the knights and ladies here.

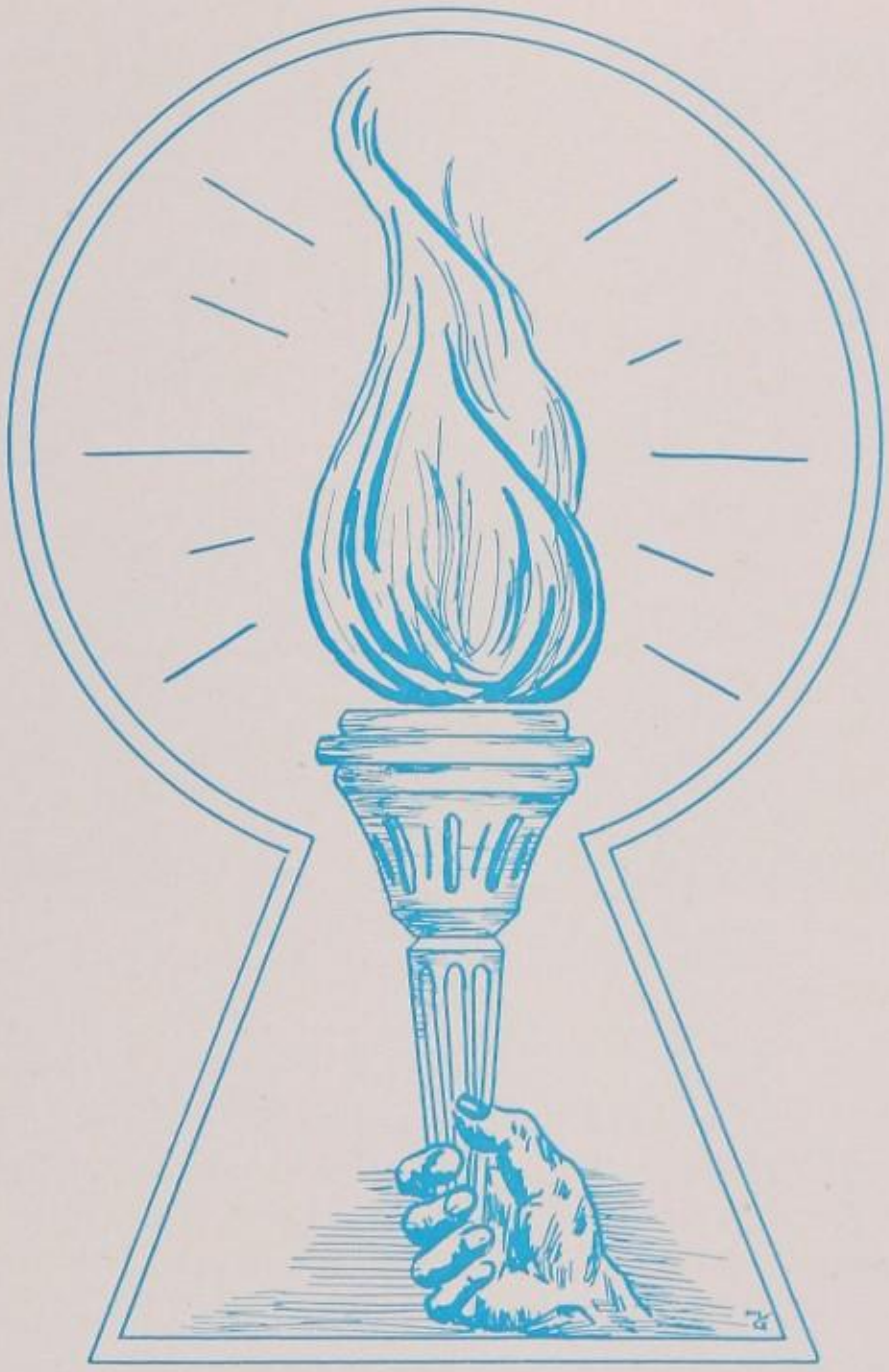


THE BLEACHERS

From starting whistle to timer's gun,
We occupy your wooden tiers,
Hoping, trusting, yet with fears,
We cheer on till the game is won.

STATUE OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Lincoln, standing strong and tall,
Guards our busy Castle hall,
Giving hope to those who fall,
Breathing strength to one and all.



FACULTY

THE FACULTY

The seventy-eight men and women who compose the faculty of Central High School are very well trained in the subjects which they teach. Every day of the school year, these instructors take their places in their respective class rooms in order to teach the pupils their three R's. Many hours are spent by these men and women in preparing interesting material for the discussion part of each class period, and the greater majority of students do not realize how much time the average teacher spends after school hours in gathering outside information, correcting papers, and other tedious tasks.

The faculty of Central High School is divided into ten departments. These groups are administration, English, history, mathematics, foreign language, science, commercial, physical education, industrial, and miscellaneous. All of these departments are self-explanatory, except perhaps the industrial and the miscellaneous. The industrial department includes clothing, foods, homemaking, auto mechanics, electricity, printing, woodshop, art, and home planning, while found in the miscellaneous department are psychology, band, orchestra, music, theory, and the various vocal organizations. The greatest number of teachers is, of course, found in the English department, because this subject is a required one for pupils of every classification except the senior twelve. The commercial and history departments follow closely at the heels of th English group. Commercial subjects are not compulsory at our Castle except for students who are taking the commercial course, but typing and shorthand are very popular subjects, due to the fact that so many students, regardless of the course they are taking, choose them as electives. Several excellent history courses are offered, but the only one of them required is American History, which is compulsory for all students of the eleventh grade.

When a person is in the senior ninth grade at one of the junior schools he is given a Central High School curriculum sheet, and from this he plans his course for his next three years of senior high school. The seven courses are grouped under the two main headings, the college preparatory, and the high school graduation. Under the college preparatory group are the general, classical, and scientific-engineering courses. The general course requires seven semesters of English, and two semesters each of geometry, American History, a scinc, and physical education. The remainder of his subjects the pupil may select for himself, but this course prepares for college entrance only if electives are properly selected. The classical course calls for seven semesters of English, either six or eight semesters of Latin, two semesters of either chemistry or physics, one semester of English or American literature, and two semesters each of geometry, American history, and physical training. To take the scientific-engineering course, one must include the following subjects: seven semesters of English, two semesters each of geometry, biology, physical education, chemistry, physics, and American history, and one semester each of algebra three and solid geometry. Four semesters of either German or French are highly recommended for this course, along with a semester each of algebra four and trigonometry. Both the classical and the scientific-engineering courses prepare for entrance to practically all colleges and universities. The commercial, high school, graduation, cooperative retailing, and cooperative auto trade courses are classified under the high school graduation group. None of the courses in this group should be elected, if the student ever expects to attend college. The commercial course requires seven semesters of English (two of these are business English), two semesters each of bookkeeping, American history, typewriting, and physical training, and one semester each of commercial geography, salesmanship, and commercial law. Many students in the commercial department elect three semesters of typewriting and four of shorthand. Commercial students who take shorthand must take at least three semesters. Shorthand must be accompanied by typewriting, but typewriting may be elected without shorthand. In the high school graduation course, one is required to take the following things: six semesters of English, two semesters each of American history and physical education, and one semester each of civics and economics. The cooperative retailing course requires five semesters of commercial English, three semesters of retailing, two semesters each of business arithmetic, public speaking, and merchandising, and one semester each of commercial geography, textiles, economic history of the United States, advertising, color and design, economics, sales psychology, trade journalism and bibliography, sociology, mental hygiene, and sales demonstration. To take the cooperative auto trade course, one must include the following: three semesters of mechanical drawing, two semesters of business arithmetic, and one semester each of shop mathematics, general science, commercial geography, history of industrial United States, mechanics, sales and business letters, commercial law, civics, and bookkeeping.

To enter senior high school, one must have met the following requirements while in junior school: eight credits in academic work, one credit in industrial arts, and one credit in physical training. (A credit is earned at the completion of one semester's work in any subject). In the junior schools, a semester's work in physical education, foods, and clothing constitutes a half a credit . In senior high school, a semester's work in any subject earns a full credit, with the following exceptions: band, orchestra, junior orchestra, junior chorus, senior chorus, choir, and girls' glee club. These last mentioned groups earn a half a credit each. The general requirements for graduation from senior high school are twenty-four credits and one credit in physical training. The specific requirements are two majors, consisting of seven credits in English, and six credits in another subject, and two minors of four credits each. Unless either mathematics or history is offered as a major, they both must be offered as minors. One year of science is required. In computing the above majors, minors, and science, the subjects taken during the ninth grade at junior school are included. If the courses are followed as they are printed on the curriculum sheet, the majors and minors will take care of themselves.

The pupils at Central have the advantage of having many electives from which to choose. In a number of smaller schools, the electives are limited and the students are compelled to follow a prescribed course of study. Even in a school as large as Central, pupils, especially those intending to go to college, should choose their electives cautiously. If a definite college has been selected, it is well for the student to consult its catalogue for its specific entrance requirements. Electives must be chosen from the year and semester in which the pupil is classified or the semester next preceding or following. Not more than eight credits may be offered in any one subject toward graduation. Only one subject at a time may be taken in any one department.

Although foreign language is not a requisite for graduation, many students take advantage of the complete language department which Central has. Latin, French, German, and Spanish are the languages in which instruction may be had. A pupil may elect four years of Latin, if he pleases, or two years of any one of the other three languags. If a foreign language is elected, two years of this language must be completed. One year of a second language is allowed. Three semesters of one foreign language, or two years of each of two foreign languages constitute a major.

Report cards are issued three times a semester, during the seventh, thirteenth, and eighteenth weeks. These are sometimes preceded by warning cards, which the teachers distribute to pupils whose work is below average. These warning cards are given out in order that the student who receives one will do something about improving his grade. If nothing is done about this warning card, the student may be relatively sure that he will receive a D or an F on his report card. The system of marking at Central High is as follows: A—95 to 100 per cent; B—89 to 94 per cent; C—82 to 88 per cent; D—75 to 81 per cent; F—below 75. A, of course, denotes honor work; B, excellent work; C, good work; D poor work; and F failure. While D grades carry credits toward graduation, it should be remembered that recommendations for college entrance are based upon a general average of C or better. Pupils making all A's and B's for any six weeks period are listed on the honor roll, and pupils making an average of 90 per cent in their semester grades during the three years spent in senior high school receive honorable mention at their graduation. Pupils who participate in any interscholastic contests must be passing in four subjects, and must have made four credits the preceding semester. The normal load to be carried by a pupil is four subjects. Only those who have an average of B or better during the previous semester are permitted to carry more than four. This is a very strict rule of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools by which Central High School is accredited.

The students of Central High are very fortunate in having such a well-equipped school to attend. Although the building was erected in 1892, the school board has had it remodeled several times, and at present the entire structure is in excellent condition. The school contains a very fine gymnasium, which is equipped with a new electric scoring clock. The gymnasium is divided in two parts by a large folding partition. One part is for the girls and the other for the boys. Physical education is required of all tenth grade students, and is taken on alternate days of the week. Both the boys' gym and the girls' gym have ample locker space, showers, and dressing rooms.

Since there are seventy-eight teachers and more than two thousand students at Central, it would be impossible for the entire building to go to lunch at the same time. For the past few years, a system has been used whereby all pupils and teachers who have a fourth period class or study hall which is on the 300 or 400 floor have the first lunch period from 11:30 to 12:00, and all pupils and teachers who have a fourth period class or study hall on the 200, 100, or shop floor, have the second lunch period from 12:30 to 1:00. Central is provided with a large lunch hoom for those who bring their lunches from home, and a cafeteria for those who buy their lunches.

The students of Central High are surrounded on all sides by opportunities. An excellent faculty, a very complete course of study with many electives, and a well-equipped building are all present for the benefit of the boys and girls. It is up to them to take advantage of these things, and to make the most of the good high school education which is offered them.

QUILL AND SCROLL

Writing, editing, and business management are all important keys to happiness, and the club which takes up these phases of life is Quill and Scroll. Quill and Scroll was founded at Central in 1926 and has, by this time, become a very important institution of our Castle. The purposes of this society are to advance scholarship among the students; to develop better journalists, and to bring about a higher code of ethics, and so raise the standards of journalism, to promote clear and unprejudiced thinking and forceful writing. The motto of the society well illustrates the value of it, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

The members of this club must be of either junior or senior classification, and must be qualified for membership by either one semester of work on the Record staff or one year of work on the Annual. A person must also have done superior work and must be recommended by the Adviser.

The meetings of the club consist of talks by business men engaged in the field of journalism. The members also promote creative writing of all kinds, further any journalistic work of the school, improve the school's publications—the Record and the Annual, and promote the best interests of the school. One of the big activities of the club was sending representatives to the Iowa High School Press Unit Contest at Grinnell on October 18 and 19. The people sent were Dorothy Maxeiner and Margaret Holmes, and a great deal of worth was derived from this.

The adviser of the club is Mr. Fisher. The society elects officers once each semester.

Quill and Scroll of Central is a chapter of the International Honorary Society for High School Journalists.

Middle Row: Jacobi, Blake, Lindgren, Knoefler, P. Arthur, Hickman.
Bottom Row: Clark, Knupp, Jacobsen, Burkle, Comstock, Lindeberg.

STUDENT FORUM

To have a smoothly running school, a high school must have a student governing body. That organization in Central is the Student Forum. The purpose of this society is to cooperate with the administration in running school affairs.

One must have high qualifications to be a member of the Forum, as there are only twenty members. This membership is composed of eight seniors, six juniors, four sophomores, and two faculty members. The members are first nominated by a committee of the Forum and are later voted on by all the students. Those of the higher classifications are elected during the sixteenth week of every semester in the home rooms, and the junior tens are elected the eighth week of the next semester at a special assembly. Another requirement for each member is grades of "C" or above. Members may be re-elected, but the election is only for one semester.

The Forum meets every Tuesday after school to discuss their activities. The biggest function is to arrange for the all-school dances, which are well attended and are successful affairs. Another of the duties is the sponsorship of various school doings, such as the clean-up campaign, the selling of pennants, some assemblies, school elections, the selection of cheer leaders, Homecoming activities, Courtesy Committee, and school banking.

The officers are elected by the Forum members. The vice-president of one semester automatically succeeds to the position of presidency, and so must be a senior. The officers serve for one semester, and those for the first semester are: President, Leonard Avery; vice president, Don Jacobsen; secretary, Marian Hansen. The second semester officers are: President, Don Jacobsen; vice president, Vera Lindgren; and secretary, June Blake.

The Forum is led each semester by two members of the faculty. These instructors are also elected by the student body, and this year were Miss Mourning and Mr. Hickman for the first semester, and Mr. Jacobi and Mr. Hickman for the second.

PARNASSUS

This year, there was a new club organized in Central to help students achieve their keys to happiness. The movement was started early in December by Miss Jordan's English literature class. There was a large publicity campaign, which aroused a great deal of interest, preceding the organization of the club. Parnassus was named for a mountain in Greece where the mythical gods resided. Parnassus was founded for the purpose of promoting good reading in Central.

The membership is made up of students of senior classification. In order to be eligible for membership a pupil must be taking English 7 or American or English literature. A student must be recommended for membership by his English teacher, and then the club elects in the member. Another qualification for membership is that the students must have grades of C or above. A good character is also required of the members. The ability to behave without the aid of a teacher is necessary for an organization of this type to be successful.

Parnassus has many accomplishments to its credit. The club intends to hold at least two meetings a semester, although more were held this year to get the project launched. The purposes of these meetings is to elect new members and officers. The organization has started to furnish room 218 in a pleasant manner, so as to be conducive to good reading and deep thinking. Members are privileged to go there during their seutdy periods to read the books available there. There is no teacher in this room, but there are members of the club, called proctors, who are in charge each period.

The officers are elected by the members once a semester. Those for the first term are: President, Newton Sacks; vice president, Leonard Avery; secretary, Charlotte Kelly; and treasurer, Charles Lindsay. Those for the second semester are: Philip Everist, president; Bob Sullivan, vice president; Dorothy Maxeiner, secretary; and Anthe Keriakedes, treasurer. Miss Jordan is adviser of the group.

HONOR SOCIETY

When a Centralite has gathered many keys to happiness, he is honored by membership in the National Honor Society, and this is the highest key to happiness which he can achieve while in Central.

Membership is based upon four ideals—scholarship, character, leadership, and service. Only seniors are eligible, and the members are elected by the faculty in accordance with the rules of the constitution of the Castle Chapter of the National Honor Society. To be considered, a student must be in the upper third of his class and must possess the other three sterling qualities.

The induction ceremonies took place on January sixteenth in a general assembly. Rev. G. D. Serrill, pastor of the First Christian Church, gave the address.

On March third, many friends, members, alumni of the society and many teachers assembled at the Elks Club for the semi-annual banquet. A diversified program was presented with Rev. A. B. Schwertz, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran Church, as the main speaker of the evening. The theme for the entertainment was "Say It with Music", and all who were there enjoyed the evening greatly.

To be an officer of the Honor Society is a high distinction indeed. They are lected by the other members and serve for one semester only. Those for the first semester are: President, Palmer Finsvik; vice president, Neva Littlejohn; and secretary, Jean Weaver. Second semester officers are: John Fotis, president; Ennis Naeve, vice president; and Ruth Serrill, secretary. The treasurer is one of the faculty, also chosen by the members. Miss Katharine Mourning served in this capacity for both semesters. Mr. Littlejohn is the popular adviser of the Honor Society. The meeting for the elections is the only regular one held, but quite often special meetings are called.

The Honor Society is a national organization, and the emblem and membership in it are recognized all over the country. May the members, present and past, ever hold high the pledge, "I pledge myself to uphold the high purposes of this society to which I have been elected, striving in every way by word and deed, to make its ideals the ideals of my school."

CASTLE ART GUILD

One of the most important keys to happiness is the appreciation of art. This is made possible in Central, in addition to the regular art classes, by the Castle Art Guild, more commonly known as the Art Club.

The purpose of this worthy club is, of course, to promote interest in art among the pupils in Central. The Art Club meets the first and third Thursday of every month in the Hep-Elite club room.

The Art Club is composed of about thirty-five members. Anyone who takes art is automatically entitled to membership in the Art Club. Pupils who do not take art are required to hand in a group of three or four pictures, which are judged by a committee of the club members. If the pictures meet the qualifications, the person is admitted to the club.

The main accomplishment of the Castle Art Guild this year has been the sponsorship of an art contest. This contest was open to the whole school and aroused a great deal of interest. Many students entered this contest and the prizes were well worth while. From time to time there have been exhibits in the main halls on the second floor. These pictures show the talent and progress of the art in Central. The club held several spreads during the year which were enjoyed by all.

There are two sets of officers elected each year by members of the club. The group was competently led the first semester by Roland Morrison, president; La Vern Frank, vice president; Marjorie Howard, secretary; Elaine Nelson, treasurer. The officers for the second term were: President, June Blake; vice president, Mary Jane Middleton; secretary, Marjorie Howard; treasurer, Harriet Cowell. Miss Mason, the art instructor at Central, is the well-liked and capable adviser of the Art Club.

All the students who have been members of the club will vouch for the worth and benefit gained from it. Art Club holds a position of high standing in Central, and the whole school is interested in its progress.

BOKIAN

Another essential to happiness is reading good literature. Central High offers ample opportunity for good reading in the splendid library which is available to the student body. To run this large library, Miss Engle, the librarian, must have assistance. Bokian is composed of the students who aid in the library.

To become a member of Bokian, one must complete six problems concerning the library and the material which it contains. Library assistants must have grades of "C" or above, or they are suspended until their grades are raised.

Bokian meets every other Tuesday after school in the librarian's office. The programs have a wide variety, ranging from musical numbers to the mending of books. Many of the meetings during the past year have been spent in the latter occupation. One of the meetings was in the form of a theater party at the Orpheum. This was both educational and entertaining, and all the members of the club who went enjoyed themselves immensely. At Christmas time, Bokian had a Yuletide party, and exchanged gifts. Every meeting is concluded with refreshments. Once in a while, the club has a "clean-up" meeting. At this time, the members dust all the books and shelves in the library.

Bokian has many accomplishments to its credit. It helps to promote good reading by displaying books of many different types throughout the library. It keeps scrapbooks on many different subjects. Students often have need for these. The club corresponds with clubs of like nature in other schools, and thus finds out what others are doing. The members also aid in the regular library work by giving up one study period. Officers are elected once a semester by the members. Neva Littlejohn served as president for the first semester. Bernice Rumsch was vice president; Roma Hough was secretary, and Doris Carlson, treasurer. Officers for the second semester include Roma Hough, president; Darline Kistner, vice president; Eleanor Hinds, secretary; Dorothy Roost, treasurer. Miss Engle is the competent adviser.

CASTLE COMMERCIAL CLUB

Another key to happiness available to students of Central is efficiency in the commercial world. To further this, the students have established the Castle Commercial Club.

The members of this club are composed of Central students who take at least one commercial subject. Each room elects one representative to be on the board which governs the club. Each member pays dues of twenty-five cents a semester, and this entitles him to attend all meetings and parties.

Castle Commercial Club holds its meetings every third Thursday in the Philo-Civics club room. A different member of the board gets up the program each month. Both members and guests perform on these programs. Often an outside speaker is asked to lecture on a phase of the business world. Once a semester the members of the organization make a visit to some local business firm after school. This group is conducted through the place of business and various points are explained to the students for future use. As a money raising project, C. C. C. sells football programs to students before some of the most important games. This sales campaign has proved to be very profitable to the club. For another activity C. C. C. sponsors inter-class and inter-school contests each spring in shorthand and typewriting. Eliminations are made in the classes, then in the school, and finally the contest is conducted between Central and East. Awards are presented for victory in all these events. The officers of the club are elected by the board, to serve for the term of one semester. Those for the first semester of the past year were Dixie Mae Foulk, president; La Nae Samuelson, vice president; Lorraine Elmer, secretary; Roy Dawson, treasurer. In the second semester the club was led by Norman Gustafson as president; Mildred Nelson as vice president; Ernest Jenkinson as secretary; Ruth Miller as treasurer. Miss Beemer is the able and gracious adviser.

CASTLE KAMERA CLUB

Pictures, pictures, and more pictures. This is the motto of the Castle Kamera Club of Central High. The members are interested in the art of taking pictures, and are greatly accomplished in that line..

At the present time the club is composed of about ten photographers of all classifications. A person who wishes to become a member of the Kamera Club must be able to take pictures and then develop them himself. Mr. Hissong and a committee of the club members pass on the eligibility of these prospective members.

The activities of the club are very interesting. The meetings are held every Thursday night in room 320. Sometimes the programs are given by the members and often outside speakers present their ideas. The programs have great variety. At some of the meetings, the members develop films by the tank method and then print them. The club is very fortunate in having its own equipment with which to do this work. The club is a help to the school in that the members run the films for the history classes. The members gain a great deal from this work, and become even more accomplished in the line.

Officers are elected each semester by the members of the club. The club worked the first semester under the capable leadership of Gregory Knowles. Emil Samore served as vice president; Margaret Holmes as secretary; and Esther Friedman, as assistant secretary. Officers for the second semester are: President, Bruce Van Scoter; vice president, George Abdouch; secretary, Pauline Friedman; and assistant secretary, Gregory Knowles. The members are lucky, indeed, for the association they thus have with Mr. Hissong, for he is very much interested and educated in these lines, and uses his experience to good avail.

The youth of the twentieth century has a great privilege and opportunity in the many advancements which they may use. It is wonderful to be able to bring back memories of happy high school days by pictures. Photography is an accomplishment that one may use profitably all through life. Central High is proud to be able to claim these industrious picture takers as its own. The members are used in various ways throughout the school. Some serve on the Annual Board and the club is a great help to the school.

CREATIVE WRITERS' CLUB

Because of the interest of so many students in original writing, the Creative Writers' Club has been formed. The purpose of the society is to further writing and interest in writers among Central students.

To become a member, one must hand in an original manuscript, and this must be passed on by the club. The paper may be of any type, and it is read in the business meeting, discussed and voted upon. A person is also required to attend at least one meeting before handing in the manuscript. The club works in cooperation with the English department, and many of the members are gained through the recommendations of an English teacher.

The activities of this organization are very interesting. Creative Writers' Club meets every Wednesday night after school in room 220. The meetings are made up of reports on authors, poets, and speeches, and themes, stories, poems, and essays written by the members. After an original paper has been read, the club discusses and criticizes the manuscript, and the writer gains a good deal of benefit from this. Members often attend lectures and plays, and then these are discussed in the next meeting. The club urges its members to enter the many contsts from which literature is received, and prompts reading of all kinds.

The officers of the club are elected by the members for a term of one semester. The first group of officers were: President, Belva Richardson; vice president, Ernest Jenkinson; and secretary, Sally Weinstein. Since the club has no definite dues, no treasurer is elected, and the secretary takes care of the special funds which are sometimes collected. The students who functioned in the offices for the second semester were Rosanna Dikel, president; Ruth Serrill, vice president; and Miriam Barish, secretary. The club is under the very capable faculty leadership of Miss Hobbs. The members are all grateful to her for her guidance and example.

DRAMATIC CLUB

Knowledge of dramatic affairs and interest in them are the aims of Central's Dramatic Club. The club is a great addition to the numerous interests in Central and many students find enjoyment and education in it.

Membership is granted to the applicant if his production of a reading or a part of a play is passed on by the executive committee. His selection need not be long, but it must be presented in a good style.

The meetings and activities of this club are very interesting. The programs are made up of various musical numbers, readings, plays, and reports on the doings in the world of drama by the members. Quite often an outsider is invited to speak or read before the club, and these entertainments are much enjoyed by the club. After the meetings are over, the officers induct tryouts for membership. For an outside project, the club put on several interesting plays in assembly. Members of the club gave a splendid interpretation of the play, "The Legend of the Chimes", at the Christmas assembly. The school appreciates the good work which this organization is doing.

Dramatic Club elects officers once a semester. The capable leaders for the first semester were Joanne Lewis, president; James Hilsinger, vice president; Mary Hinchman, secretary; and Kellogg Wells, treasurer. The officers that led the club for the second semester were: President, Gretchen Krenv; vice president, Miriam Blank; secretary, Audrey Myers; and treasurer, Rosanna Dikel.

It is quite an accomplishment to be a member of Dramatic Club and a great deal of worth and benefit are gained from it. It is a real joy to be a member of the cast of one of the plays and to take part in the programs of Dramatic Club. Many of this group are chosen for class plays, and they give proof of their ability and knowledge in later life.

FRIENDSHIP AND INNER CIRCLE

The most golden key of all on the key ring of happiness is friendship. One cannot attain real felicity, unless one has many friends.

The Friendship Club is made up of every girl in Central. The Inner Circle is composed of twenty girls who are elected by all the members of Friendship. In this twenty there are five from each of the girls' clubs and five non-club members.

The activities of Friendship and Inner Circle are very diversified. The Inner Circle girls sell tags every semester and these tags admit the holders to the monthly meetings of Friendship on the fourth Thursday of every month. These meetings are very interesting—some of the programs were: a boys' program, a new girls' program, seniors' farewell, and an Inner Circle program. After the program is over the girls dance in the gym. Inner Circle meets every Thursday in room 126. The largest activity of the club is the May banquet, to which all the girls of Central and their mothers are invited. The banquet was held in the First Methodist Church on May ninth. The big event of the evening was the crowning of the May Queen of 1936. The reigning monarch is chosen by all the girls of the school. The ballot of nominees is made up from the choices of the faculty and the Inner Circle. The tables are all beautifully decorated, and it is one of the most outstanding events of the school year.

As in all such democratic organizations, the girls of Central vote on a ballot which is made up by Miss Cook and the Inner Circle girls. The honored person who served as president for the past pear was Mary Jane Nelson. Vera Lindgren was the capable vice president, and Anna Lou Reeves was chosen secretary, but it was necessary to elect another one, since she graduated at mid-year. The second one to serve was Betty Osnowitz. Katherine Hampe served as treasurer for the year. Miss Cook, the girls' dean, is the popular adviser for Friendship.

May each link in the chain of friendship ever remain strong.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

An understanding of the affairs and events of the outside world and the effects of these events upon people are essential to happiness. There is a club in Central which aids the students in gaining this knowledge. The name, International Relations Club, fully suggests the activities and purpose of this organization.

Membership in this club is open to anyone who wishes to belong. Students of all classifications take an active interest in the club and its activities. To become a member, one must attend a meeting and sign the constitution.

International Relations Club holds its meetings every other Tuesday in room 204. The meetings are of many different types, but they are usually of the educational sort. Members of the club give reports on various magazine articles and current books. At different times during the year, the club has outside speakers. Rabbi Lewis gave a very interesting lecture on dictators. At Christmas time the club had a party with a miscellaneous program and refreshments. This party was the only social event of the year. International Relations Club sponsors the League of Nations test that is given in Central. The club obtains information for this test, and usually the members of the club who take the test place very high in the rating.

Officers are elected by the members once a semester. The club was under the competent leadership of Sidney Kalin for the first semester. Other officers were Esther Friedman, vice president; Betty Osnowitz, secretary; and Anthe Keriakedes, treasurer. The capable leaders for the the second semester were: President, Elizabeth Miller; vice president, Pauline Friedman; secretary, Olga Keriakedes; treasurer, Roma Hough. Miss Nelson is the popular and efficient adviser of this club. Her particular interest in this subject enables her to be still greater value to the organization.

HI-Y

One of the most important activities which aids the boys of Central to complete their keys to happiness is Hi-Y. The purpose of the Hi-Y is to promote clean living, good morals, and high standards among the boys of Central. This club, which is one of Central's oldest organizations, is carried on in connection with Sioux City's Y. M. C. A. The group is also member of the national organization, which is composed of about two thousand members.

Hi-Y meets every Tuesday night at the Y. M. C. A. building. Any boy in Central who promises to live up to the high ideals of the club is granted admission.

The programs are greatly varied. They consist of discussions by the members or of lectures on important subjects of today by outside speakers. Occasionally the members have a party at which "a good time is had by all." On March thirtieth, Hi-Y held a banquet in conjunction with the sister club, Hi-Tri. There were several musical numbers on the program, and Rev. E. W. Stimson was the main speaker for the evening. At different times during the year, Hi-Y had joint meetings with the same organization from East.

Officers are elected once each semester by the members of Hi-Y. The competent leaders for the first semester were: President, Junior Nash; vice president, Edward Rogers: secretary, Jack McClintock; and treasurer, Jack Vandenbrock. The club was efficiently led during the second semester by Douglas Beggs, president; Ted Grier, vice president; Gilbert Jones, secretary; and Bob Spayde, treasurer. The adviser for the organization is Mr. Baker. Because of his special interest in this sort of thing, he is especially efficient and well-liked by the boys of Hi-Y.

Because of the splendid training of Hi-Y, the boys are better able to meet the many problems they will have to solve. Central hopes that Hi-Y will go far in promoting its interests among Centralites.

HI-TRI

One of the most important keys to happiness for girls is the ability to make profitable contacts with the outside world, and to maintain high moral standards. In Central the club which is very beneficial in aiding them to do this is Hi-Tri. This club operates in connection with the Y. W. C. A. and is a member of the national organization.

At the present time there are about fifty members. Last semester and the first part of this, membership was open to any girl who wished to belong. However, about the middle of this semester, the members decided to vote on the girls who desired membership.

Hi-Tri meets every other Wednesday in the Delph-Chresto club room. The programs have a great variety and are very interesting. In addition to those given by the members, many entertaining and beneficial speakers have talked on subjects of interest to girls of this age. Miss Geraldine Johnson of Morningside College, spoke on etiquette, and Miss Tone from the Tone Beauty Shop, gave the girls a great deal of information on the care of the skin and hair. The club held numerous parties and spreads. Frequently Hi-Tri holds a joint meeting with the Hi-Tri of East. On March thirtieth Hi-Tri held a banquet with the brother club Hi-Y, and with the Hi-Tri and Hi-Y from East High at the Y. M. C. A. Rev. E. W. Stimson was the main speaker at the banquet.

Officers are elected once each semester by the members of the club. The leaders for the first semester were Winogen Wilkes, president; Marian Hill, vice president; Joy wingeier, secretary; and Margaret Knapp, treasurer. During the second semester, Hi-Tri worked under the competent guidance of Joy Wingeier, president; Grace Noreen, vice president; Frances Oakleaf, secretary; and Ethel Koser, treasurer. For the first semester the adviser was the popular homemaking teacher, Miss Johnston. The capable adviser for the second semester was Miss Vifquain.

Central hopes that Hi-Tri will go far in helping to develop good characters and high standards among its members.

LATIN CLUB

Another cultural subject that has been taken up by clubs is Latin. In Central there are two Latin Clubs.

One of these is made up of Cicero students. The official name of this organization is Quarente Quaerites. The club meets in room 334 every other Friday during class period. The programs are made up of various phases of life and interests in old Rome. The members have several parties, including a Christmas party, at which they exchanged gifts.

The members elected only one set of officers for the semester. These are Dorothy Gleysteen, Primus Consul, or president; Charline Marshall, Secundus Consul, or vice president, and Nancy Arthur, Aedile, or secretary. The adviser for the group is Mrs. Brandenburg, respected and liked by all Centralites.

The other Central Latin Club is composed of students of Virgil, who have taken the name Olympians. Each member has adopted the name of a god or goddess, and roll call is answered by saying "praesens" the Latin word for "here".

The meetings are held every other Monday during the third period in room 133. The programs are composed of topics pertaining to Latin and Rome. One of the unusual features of the year's doings was attendance at a tea given by a club of Morningside College students interested in Latin. The occasion was the bi-millennial anniversary of the birthday of Horace. The members also held a banquet during January at the Sioux Tea Shop. Also, the club had several parties.

The members of the club elect officers three times a year. These officers go by the names of the heads of the gods. Jupiter, president; Juno, vice president; and Mercury, secretary. Those for the first term of the past year were: President, Mary Jane Nelson; vice president, Joan Mortrude; and secretary, Miriam Nordstrom. For the second term, Ruth Serrill acted as president; Mary Kingsbury, vice president; and Kathrine Hampe as secretary. For the last twelve weeks, Mary Louise Barrett filled the office of president; Helen Johnson was the vice president; and Marian Cheeseman was secretary. Miss Sullivan was the popular adviser of the club.

CHESS CLUB

One of the greatest keys to happiness, especially in the near future, is the enjoyment of leisure hours. One of the chief ways of doing this is playing games, and one of the finest games to occupy one's attention is chess.

This year in Central, the students interested in playing chess formed a Chess Club. The membership is made up of all Centralites who wish to belong. The purpose of the club is to teach the game to all who are interested so that they will be able to play a good game and to follow champion chess players and the games they play.

The club meets every Tuesday night in room 226. The main purpose of the meeting is to report on the way the tournaments are progressing. After the meetings the tournaments are carried on among the members.

The organization of the club consists of three committees. One committee, that on elucidation, teaches new members haw to play chess; another group, called the enlightenment committee, settles disputes on technicalities of the game; and the third division is the kibitzers, any member who wishes to function as such.

The officers of the club are elected by the members and are named after the various men of the chess game. Since the club has been organizd for only one semester, there has been but one set of officers. The king, or president of the club was Ernest Jenkinson; the queen, or vice president, was Olive Vickery; the knight, or secretary, was Jackson Davis; the rook, or program chairman, was Norman Dove; the bishop, or treasurer, was Arthur Bellaire; and the official kibitzer was Mr. Kenneth Evans. All the members make up the division named "pawns". The club was under the direction, for the semester, of Mr. George Ray. He is very interested in the art of chess playing, and so makes an excellent adviser for the group.

SPANISH CLUB

Most authorities agree that Spanish is the language which will be used most in foreign commerce in the future. Many students take advantage of the courses in Spanish offered in Central, and the students have formed some Spanish Clubs. Both clubs have El Aguila for their official name, which means "The Eagle".

Miss Siderius's Spanish four students have formed one of these. This group meets in one of the clubrooms during sixth period, every other Wednesday. The programs consist of various talks and discussions related to Spain and Mexico and their interests.

The president for the first group was Douglas Beggs. The vice president was Edward Rogers; the secretary, Dawn O'Brien; and the treasurer, Darwyn Vondrak. The capable officers for the second group were Pierre Hathaway, president; Leverett Jacobi, vice president; George Milner, secretary; and Frances Knutsen, treasurer. The popular adviser and teacher of the group was Miss Siderius.

Miss Hoff's Spanish four group met first period Friday in one of the club rooms, for the first semester. This organization has programs of a varied sort, usually related to Spain or Mexico in some manner. The two divisions usually have a picnic in the spring.

The president of the group for the first semester was Malcolm Beauchamp; the vice president, Rose Carraher; the secretary, Phyllis Erickson; and the treasurer, Louis Hurwitz. President of the second period group was John Winter. Other officers were: Vice president, Gerald Mulholland; secretary, Lana Bogdanow; and treasurer, Earl Lindbloom. Gilbert Jones was president of the fourth period group. Junior Nash was vice president; Bernice Carlson, secretary; and Sam Edelman, treasurer. Miss Hoff is the able adviser for the division.

SCHOLASTIC PHOTOPLAY CLUB

In the past decade, movies and movie stars have come into more and more prominence. As in any other type of work, movies become more interesting as one studies them. If one knows them, one is better able to weed out the good from the bad. A group of the Central students have organized a club, with the aim of finding out about the cinema.

The name of the group is the Scholastic Photoplay Club. The membership is made up of the students of Miss Lucy Hobbs who were taking English 3 the first semester and English 4 the second. The organization was started during the first semester, and has continued through.

The Scholastic Photoplay meets every Monday during second period in room 220. For the programs, the members gave reports on various modern movies, and all the students discuss these movies and the movie stars. Talks are also given on the numerous ways of producing and the ways used in different productions. The members report on their favorite stars for the programs. As another activity, many of the pupils make scrapbooks on the subject. The club is based on a column in the Scholastic magazine, used by many of the English classes. This column discusses the movies popular for the month, and the club uses these articles as a basis for its efforts. The articles are written by Sarah McMellan and prove very interesting to the students.

Officers are elected each semester by the members of the club. The efficient president for the first semester was Margaret Ford. The vice president was Bob Huling, and the secretary, Eunice Ehorn. The group worked during the second semester under the capable leadership of Bob Huling. The other officers were Margaret Ford, vice president; Betty McElrath, secretary. Since the club collects no dues, there is no need for a treasurer. Miss Hobbs is the competent adviser of this enterprising group.

MARIONETTE CLUB

The most recent club which has been organized in Central is the Marionette Club. This club was organized in April of 1936. The name fully suggests the purpose of the club, that of working with marionettes. They make the marionettes, dress them, and build the theaters in which to operate them. The members wish to learn everything about the making and operating of marionettes.

At the present time, there are about ten or twelve members of the Marionette Club. Any student in Central who is in any way interested in marionettes may be a member of the club. Some of the members of the club have had previous experience in working with marionettes, and others have had no experience at all.

The Marionette Club meets every Monday night in room 121. As the club is purely a craft organization, all of the time at the meetings is spent in working with the marionettes. There are no dues for the club because it is such a new organization. Even though it is a craft club, the members talk as they work, and therefore make it quite a social organization. The meeting concluded with refreshments. The club had a joint picnic with the Art Club in the spring. The Marionette Show which we had in assembly this spring was of special interest to the members of the Marionette Club.

The member who was the most interested and active in organizing the Marionette Club was Ruth Schott. She was greatly interested in marionettes in junior school, and wanted to organize a club in Central. The popular and capable adviser of this organization is Miss Mason, the talented art teacher at Central. She is very interested in marionettes and thus makes a very efficient leader for the group.

Central hopes that the Marionette Club will go far as one of the important organizations here and that the membership will increase as the club progresses.

GERMAN CLUB

One of the modern languages which is steadily growing in importance in the world of science and medicine is German. There is a two-year course in German offered in Central, and the students of this course have formed a German Club. The main purpose of the German Club is to promote interest in German and give the members an opportunity to converse in German.

Membership in this organization is made up of all students of German receiving a grade of "C" or above. There were about twenty-five active members in the club for the last year.

German Club meets every other Tuesday in room 314, immediately after school. The meetings are usually conducted in German. The programs consist of reports on affairs in Germany, and various musical and dramatic numbers. The club had a party at Christmas time and the members exchanged gifts. Another feature of the Christmas activities of the club was to give a basket to one of the needy families of the city. Also the club had an Easter party. Refreshments were frequently served.

Much of the advancement of the German Club last year was made because of the very efficient staff of officers, one for each semester. The first set of leaders was headed very competently by LaVern Frank as president. The other officers for the first semester were John Haller, vice president; George Kyriakos, secretary; and Bruce Van Scoter, treasurer. During the second semester Walter O'Millinuk served in the capacity of president. John Haller again filled the office of vice president; Bruce Van Scoter was the secretary; and George Kyriakos was the treasurer. Miss Wellhausen is the very able teacher of German, and because of this interest and efficiency, she was also adviser of German Club.

With the ever growing need for German in the activities of the world, it should become a more and more popular language among Centralites. Central wishes German Club all the success it deserves.

LITERARY SOCIETIES

ERODELPHIAN

Literary clubs are among the many keys to happiness which Central offers to its students, and, although the Erodelphian Literary Society is the youngest of the three girls' clubs, it holds a distinctive place in life at Central.

The meetings of this well known organization are held every Friday afternoon in the Delph-Chresto club room. The programs are varied, as they are in the other clubs. The Chrestos presented one program, Miss Mason gave a chalk talk at another, and often miscellaneous programs are given, with musical numbers, readings, and so forth. Once during the second semester, the Delphs held faculty night.

Delph offers many opportunities to its members. In the fall, the club won third place with its float in the homecoming parade. About Thanksgiving time, the Delph Club took part in the annual declamatory contest. Tryouts were first held for any interested club member, and from these contestants the four best, two in the dramatic and two in the humorous divisions, were chosen to represent the Delphs in the finals. The four girls who were crosen were Anthe Keriakedes, Lorine Weyenberg, Doris Carlson, and Neva Littlejohn. One of the Delph's biggest projects for the year was the painting of the club room. The theme was that of the sea, with the Delph colors, blue and white, as the predominant shades. The Chrestos painted the walls and ceilings, while the Delphs did their part by painting the chairs. Of course, it was a great deal of work, but after it was finished there was certainly something to show for it.

The Delphs held two elections each semester, and at these times many new girls are elected into membership. After the election, the new members are treated by the club at various places. Last fall, they went to the West Hotel, but more recently the girls enjoyed themselves at the Uptown and at the Harmon-Y-Ann Tea Shop.

The same night as the elections, Delph and Chresto get together for a "joint". A program and initiation of new members is held in the club room and then the group goes to the gym to join all the other clubs in dancing.

Among the various activities of the club during the year is the club picnic which is usually held the latter part of May at Crystal Lake. At this time, Delph joins the other five literary societies to enjoy swimming and refreshments.

The Erodelphians elect three sets of officers during the year, with each group holding office for a term of twelve weeks. The first set of officers were: Donabelle Benson, president; Charlotte Kelley, vice president; Neva Littlejohn, secretary; and Dorothy Wilcox, treasurer. For the second period of twelve weeks, the Delphs were led by Dolores Pederson, president; Elaine Nelson, vice president; Theodora Weander, secretary; and La Donna Schrader, treasurer. For the third term of the year, Ruth Bratt held the position of president, with Lucille Gibbons, vice president; Kathryn McCulloch, secretary; and Elains Nelson, treasurer.

The Delphs have had two advisers this year. Miss Engle held the position during the first semester, while Miss Scheuerman served as adviser during the second.

CHRESTOMATHIAN

The youngest of our literary clubs, Chrestomathian, affords another key to happiness for many boys in Central. Although Chresto was organized in 1909, much later than the other clubs, it has grown in numbers, until often there have been more Chrestos than either Kee-Yc or Elites. The Chrestos celebrated their silver anniversary on October 19, 1934. An interesting program was planned and the Chrestos and their parents had a real celebration.

The meetings of this well known organization are held every Friday evening in the club room which they share with their sister club, Delph. Members may bring their guests to the social meetings, but the business meeting is attended only by members of the club. An interesting program is held at each meeting. Often business men speak to the boys on economic problems of the day, or debates are held, or a musical program is given. In 1931, the Chrestos decided to stress programs of a literary nature, but today, while much of the entertainment is along this line, other types of programs which offer a variety are presented.

Elections of new members are held twice a semester, and each time many boys have the honor of being elected into membership. In the evning, a "joint" is held with the Delphs. The new members of both organizations are asked to appear on programs.

Late in the spring, the six literary clubs get together for the annual club picnic. As a rule, this gathering is held at Crystal Lake, and everyone looks forward to the outing.

Each fall a debate tournament is held among the three clubs. The club chooses four representatives to compete in the finals. The negative team was composed of Newton Sacks and Sidney Kalin, while Warren Dunkle and Francis Salem made up the affirmative side. Mr. John Schmidt of East High School, served as judge of the tourney. The affirmative side came out with first honors, but the negative team lost to the Elites. This gave the Chrestos second place in the entire tournament.

A very important project which the Chrestos completed this year was the painting of the club room. To save money the members decided to do the work themselves, instead of employing a painter. The Delph girls assisted them by painting the chairs and by doing a few minor jobs, but the painting of the ceiling and the walls was the work of the industrious Chresto boys.

The Chrestomathians have for their colors the olive green and gold, and their flower is the white carnation. Mr. Evans has been the capable adviser of this club for several semesters, and he is well liked by all the boys.

Three sets of officers are elected each year. The group who served for the first twelve weeks were: Palmer Finsvik, president; Stanley Sieler, vice president; Bruce Van Scoter, secretary; and Lester Bashara, treasurer. Newton Sacks was elected president for the second term, with Bruce Van Scoter, vice president; George Kyriakos, secretary; and Lester Bashara, treasurer. The last set of officers included Walter Boyle, president; Milton Galinsky, vice president; George Kyriakos, secre tary; and John Haller, treasurer.

HESPERIAN

The next literary organization which affords a great deal of happiness to its members is Hesperian. This well known girls' club at Central was organized by Miss Harriet Young in the year 1893, and the following year the Heps moved into their club room, which they share with their brother club, Elite. The girls chose pink and white as their club colors and the pink carnation as their flower. "Born not for ourselves alone, but for the whole world", is the motto by which the club is known. Many Heps wear their club pin, which is a small gold scroll with the symbolic letters H. C. engraved on it. Attached to the pin is a gold guard bearing the year of graduation.

The Hesperians hold their meetings every Friday afternoon after school. At the "open door" meetings, the members are allowed to bring guests. The guests may be present at the social meetings, but only the members attend the business meeting. Th programs are always very interesting, and are enjoyed by all. At least once a year, a boys' program is presented, and often a style show is given or a talk on beauty culture. Each club sends a delegation of two girls to visit each of the other two societies at meetings. This promotes a friendly spirit among the three girls' clubs.

One of the main projects which the Heps sponsored this year was the painting of the club room. Four Heps and one Elite, all of whom are interested in art, did this difficult work. These energetic students were Margaret Ann Dahl, Marian Hansen, Mavis Laybourn, Marion Lockmer, and Leonard Avery. The art work is very unique and original and the Hep-Elite club room is surely one to be proud of.

This year in the annual homecoming parade, the Hesperian float won first place. The theme had to do with the Dionne quintuplets, and many girls took part in making the float a success.

Every fall about Thanksgiving time, a declamatory contest is held among the three girls' clubs. Each club chooses four girls to represent its organization, two in the humorous division and two in the dramatic. The following girls were chosen by the Hesperians: Miriam Nordstrom, Ruth Serrill, Mina Hedeen, and Joanne Lewis. Miriam and Ruth came out with first place.

The latter part of May, all the literary clubs meet at Crystal Lake or some other suitable location for the annual club picnic. Swimming, boating, and above all, eating, are the main diversions of the afternoon.

The Hesperians elect three sets of officers every year. Each group serves for a period of twelve weeks. The first group of officers were: Marion Hansen, president; Joanne Lewis, vice president; Mavis Laybourn, secretary; and Jean Phyllis Weaver, treasurer. Marjorie Howard was the capable president for the second term, with Miriam Nordstrom, vice president; Anna Marie Larson, secretary; and Mildred Nelson, treasurer. The third group was led by Ethel Nelson, president; Betty Osnowitz, vice president; Ruth Serrill, secretary; and Darline Kistner, treasurer.

The Hesperians have had two efficient advisers this year; during the first semester the adviser was Miss LaVerne Hoff. She did not feel able to hold the position during the second semester, and so the girls elected Miss Curry.

ELITE

Whenever a person thinks of literary clubs at Central, Elite is one of the first words that comes to his mind. This organization is one of the best known and well liked clubs of our Castle, and has as its members a very peppy group of boys. Elite started as a small inexperienced group, having been brought together for the first time in 1892. Ever since that time the rivalry between the Kee-Ys and the Elites has been very intense, and in spite of the fact that the Elites were organized two years after the Civics, they have proved themselves to be worthy competitors. These charter members selected the name "Elite" for their club, because it is derived from the French word meaning "superior" or "of the highest type". Also the members chose lavender and white as the colors of the club, and the fleur-de-lis as their flower.

The Elites meet every Friday evening in their club room and the members may bring guests to the social meetings. The business meeting is attended only by the members, however. Very interesting programs are presented to the members and their guests. Often business men speak to the boys, and sometimes debates or talks on athletics are given. Election of new members is held twice a year, and at this time many boys are honored with membership in the club. In the evening a joint meeting of Hep and Elite is held in the club room, and at this time the new members of both clubs are asked to make speeches.

The Elites had a very successful debate season this year. Their affirmative team, composed of Jack Brown and Ernest Jenkinson, won over the negative team of the Chrestos. The negative team, made up of Jackson Davis and Arthur Bellaire, won first place over the Kee-Y affirmative team. Mr. Schmidt of East High School, was the judge of the debates, and much credit should be given to the Elites for winning this tournament.

The last of May each year, the six literary societies gather together at Crystal Lake for the club picnic. Swimming and refreshments are the main diversions and everyone has a grand time.

Mr. Clarence Dayton, instructor of sociology at Central, has been the capable adviser of the Elite Literary Society for several years. He is the oldest club adviser Elite has ever had, in point of service, and he is well liked by all the club members.

Three sets of officers are elected each year by this club. The first group of officers was Ernest Jenkinson, president; Leonard Avery, vice president; Robert Hanson secretary; Hill Haley, treasurer. The second group was headed by Edward Sanders, president; Don Jacobsen, vice president; Gilbert Jones, secretary; Jack Brown, treasurer. The last set of officers included Don Jacobsen, president; Joseph Pechacek, vice president; Robert Sullivan, secretary; Winthrop Manley, treasurer.

PHILOMATHIAN

Another well known girls' club is the Philomathian Literary Society. This organization has the honor of being the first literary club for girls to be formed at Central. It made its appearance in 1892 with twenty-eight charter members, and it has grown and grown, until today it has a membership of more than sixty. The charter members chose a gold pin the shape of a four-leaf clover, with each leaf representing the ideals of the club: love, hope, honor, and happiness. They also chose the words, "Dux femina facti" as their motto. This Latin phrase means "The leader of the deed was a woman." The white rose is the Philomathian flower, and the club colors are nile green and white.

Every Friday afternoon after school, this group of girls gathers in their club room, which is shared by the Civics Literary Society, the brother club of the Philos. The members may bring guests to the social meetings. The programs are varied in nature, although at first they were founded on a strictly educational and literary platform.

Election of new members takes place four times a year, on special days designated by the office. At these times, many new girls are honored with membership in this organization. In the evening after the election, the Kee-Ys and the Philos get together for a "joint" session. At this time, the new members of both clubs are required to give five-minute floor talks on ridiculous subjects. A special program follows, and then both groups join the four other literary societies in the gymnasium for dancing.

A very outstanding event of the year is the declamatory contest. Four girls are selected to represent Philomathian in this contest of declamations with the other two girls' literary clubs. This year the girls were: Julia Ann McDaniel and Bernice Rumsch in the humorous division, and Dorothy Ann Roost and Mary Catherine Flynn in the dramatic division. The Philos weve very fortunate this year in winning first place in the contest, with all of the entrants rating first places in their respective divisions.

Two other activities of the club during the year are the Mother's Tea and the club picnic. The Mother's Tea is usually held in May. At this time each girl brings her mother to enjoy a program and refreshments. The club picnic is held annually at Crystal Lake in conjunction with the five other literary clubs. Swimming, boating, and last, but not least, eating, are the main diversions.

The officers of Philomathian are chosen in three series, each group serving for a period of twelve weeks. The first set of officers included Betty Rew, president; Dorothy Welch, vice president; Betty Feyder, secretary; and Gertrude Call, treasurer. The second group was composed of Alice Cusack, president; Bernice Jepson, vice president; Virginia Betz, secretary; and Mary Scott, treasurer. The third set was led by Mary Catherine Flynn, president; Julia Ann McDaniel, vice president; Mary Jane Nelson, secretary; and Harriet Cowell, treasurer. Miss Mary Williamson serves as the capable adviser of the Philos.

CIVICS

Another very important organization at Central is the Civics Literary Society, which has the honor of being the first literary club of its kind formed at Central. Professor W. C. Cramer, who was principal of the high school at that time, organized the group in the year 1890 at the old Armstrong building. When Central High was erected in 1892, the Civics members were granted a room in which to hold their meetings. They were forced to vacate this room a few days later, but they were given another which they occupy to this day in conjunction with their sister club, the Philomathian Literary Society.

Democracy, loyalty, and friendship are the ideals or watchwords of the Civics, or Kee-Ys, as they are generally called. Their colors are cherry red and white, while their flower is the red carnation. "Civics Agendo Cognoscuntur" is the motto of this outstanding organization.

The Kee-Ys hold their meetings every Friday evening. Members may bring guests to the social meeting, for which special entertainment is planned. When the club was first organized, it was founded on a platform strictly literary in nature. Today, however, the social side of the club holds a position of high importance. The programs are varied in content, as they are in other literary clubs. Sometimes business men talk to the boys on interesting subjects, and frequently talented members of the club present a program.

In the fall of each year, the annual debate tournament is held. At this time, each of the three boys' clubs choose an affirmative team and a negative team to compete against the other clubs. The boys who composed the Kee-Y teams this year were: Ted Riley and Dallas Williams, negative; and Bob Knoepfler and Bob Anderson, affirmative. Although the Kee-Ys were not so successful as they have been in other years, the boys spoke very well and were a real credit to the organization. Besides the debates, the boys' literary clubs also compete in basketball, golf, and tennis. Many honors have been won by the Kee-Ys in this manner.

Elections of new members into this club are held four times a year, at times designated by the office. It is truly a great privilege to be elected into membership in a literary society, for all other honors come directly or indirectly through this medium.

The club picnic is an event that is greatly looked forward to by literary society members. It is usually held during the last of May or the first of June at Crystal Lake. Everyone has a great deal of fun swimming and eating.

The officers of Civics are elected three times for a period of twelve weeks each. Burdette Freerks was the president for the first term. Joe Suknot was vice president; Jack McClintock, secretary; and Dallas Williams, treasurer. For the second term, Junior Nash was president; Robert Knoepfler, vice president; Melvin Sogge, secretary; and Douglas Beggs, treasurer. The third set of officers was Joe Suknot, president; Harry Burdick, vice president; David Lasensky, secretary; and Edwin Brandenburg, treasurer.

The capable adviser of the Civics Literary Society is Mr. Kyle. He has held this position for many years, which proves that he is well-liked.

CHOIR

The aim of every Centralite, talented in vocal music, is Central's A Capella Choir. The organization is known all over the state for its splendid work, and all Sioux City is proud of it.

The privilege of membership in this group is granted to those who try out for Mr. Iverson, the director, and who come up to the standard of quality which he has set for the group. The major portion of the choir has spent at least one semester in one of the several preparatory groups before going into the choir. In the first semester of the past year, there were about 60 students in the choir, but the organization was enlarged to take in about 74 members at the beginning of the second semester.

ORCHESTRA

Central is proud of the large orchestra that it has had in the past year. There have been about sixty-five members in this organization. The group meets every morning first period, and does its practicing on the stage of the auditorium.

The group gave several concerts during the past year. There were several performances given at the various junior schools and the orchestra also entertained Central's own assembly groups several times during the year. One of the biggest projects that the orchestra undertook for the year was playing for the opera which was given by Central's music department. This was very good experience.

SENIOR CHORUS

In order to maintain the high standards of the A Capella Choir, it is necessary to have several preparatory groups. One of these groups is the Senior Chorus.

This group is made up of students who have not had sufficient training as yet to become a member of the choir. Those who compose the chorus are for the most part, students of the lower classifications. The organization has been very large for the past semester, due to the many Centralites who are musically minded.

The Senior Chorus meets every day in the music room on fourth floor during fourth period. Much of the work of the group is a study of the technique of music, and the many rules and studies that go with it. The pupils in the chorus collected pictures and articles of the numerous events in the music world, of Sioux City, and other places. These proved very interesting and beneficial to the members. Another of the interesting projects of the group has been to discuss the various concerts and performances of the musical organizations. This organization was very helpful in putting on the opera and in assisting with having the Ames Concert Band at Central. All of the members sang solos at some time during the semester. This work helped the pupils to overcome stage fright and enabled them to become more proficient in this art. Another work of the group was to choose small groups, such as octettes and quartets, to sing at various intervals during the year.

The organization of the group is in the hands of Mr. Maurice T. Iverson. He is the one who picks the members, and the good work of the group is due in large part, to him. Central is very grateful to him for his splendid work in producing this group.

The members of the Senior Chorus are very privileged in having this opportunity for more technical instruction, and for the training offered. Those who go into choir from chorus find it very easy to adapt themselves to choir work. All success to you.

BAND

As one enters the auditorium for a pep assembly or enters the football field, prepared for an exciting game, one hears the stirring strains of the Central High Band and determines to cheer louder. Central's band has played an important part in the affairs of the school for many years, helping to inspire in the players and spectators, as well as giving various programs outside of school.

There are forty-two members in the band this semester. The band increases each semester both in members and in the variety of instruments. New additions to the band this year were an oboe, an alto clarinet, a bass clarinet, a bassoon, and a French horn. There is almost a complete representation of all instruments in the band now. The band meets first period in Central's music room, 434. The capable leader of this splendid organization is Mr. Iverson.

The activities of Central's band are varied and numerous. Among these were programs which it presented at the junior schools at different times throughout the year. It also gave programs in our own assemblies. The band won a superior rating in the sub-district music contest, but because of difficulties which later arose, it did not go on to the State Music Festival at Iowa City. Although the band did not go to Iowa City, many of the members entered the music contests as instrumental soloists, and there were representatives on nearly all instruments, many of whom were entitled to go to Iowa City. The band spends some time in the technical study of music and instruments. The members must maintain a certain standard in order to stay in the band. Central's band, fully attired in their maroon and white uniforms, led the annual homecoming parade. The drum major this year was tall and popular Don Jacobsen. The music for one night at each of the class plays was furnished by the band. The band also helped to make a success of the concert of the Ames band.

Central is proud of its excellent band and the efficient leader, Mr. Iverson, and wishes them much success in the future.

GIRLS' SEXTETTE AND BOYS' QUARTETTE

In addition to the choir, Central has other opportunities for vocalists. Small groups give even more training in blending and perfection than a group as large as the choir. In a city the size of Sioux City, there are many invitations for performing before the various organizations and clubs of the city. The two ensembles that the music department has had in the vocal line this year were the Girls' Sextette and the Boys' Quartette.

The Girls' Sextette is picked by Mr. Iverson from those girls of the choir who wish to try out. He picks them for both their musical and scholastic ability. Those who composed the sextette for the past year were Amy Lois Howe and Eleanor Riediger, first sopranos; Mildred Nelson and Cora Jean Lindeberg, second sopranos; and Esther Mae Jones and Marion Nordenson, altos. The girls practiced many nights after school. Membership in the sextette takes a great deal of time, for practice counts for a lot. The group sang for various church gatherings and clubs, and also sang several times on the same program as the choir. Central's sextette entered the district contest, and won a superior rating. The group also sang in the Iowa City Music Festival.

The Boys' Quartette is also picked by Mr. Iverson, from the choir boys who try out. They are chosen by the same standards as the sextette. The boys who made up the quartette during the past year were Ed Cardwell, first tenor; Jack McClintock, second tenor; Lester Bashara, baritone; and Leverett Jacobi, bass. The quartette practiced in the music room several times a week, during the second semester. The group gave a great many performances before all sorts of clubs and organizations. This group also appeared on several of the choir programs. The boys went to the district contest and received a rating of superior.

Mr. Iverson again proved his great worth by training these small groups to win honors for Central.

Central congratulates these small groups on their splendid work and wishes them more luck in the future.

STRING AND BRASS QUARTETTES

Another key to instrumental work which Central offers is the opportunity to participate in some of the small instrumental groups. Working in small groups gives a greater opportunity for practice and advancement. Two of these small groups in Central are the string quartette and the brass quartette. These groups play before many of the clubs and organizations of Sioux City.

This year Mr. Buck chose three string quartettes from the orchestra. These three groups played at the home music contest, and the judges chose the one consisting of Bob Pullman, first violin; Marion Stickels, second violin; Bob Feik, viola; and Bernice Lynberg, cello, to represent Central in the other contests. As there was no competition in the sub-district contest, the string quartette did not have to play. However, they won a superior rating at the district meet at LeMars, and were entitled to go to the State Music Festival at Iowa City. The string quartette gave programs at meetings of the Kiwanis Club, the Rotary Club, the Faculty Wives' Club, and at St. Boniface Church. They practice after school under the capable instruction of Mr. Buck, who conducts Central's Orchestra.

Central's brass quartette was chosen by Mr. Iverson. It is made up of Richard Verstegen, first trumpet; Jack Suffield, second trumpet; Gordon Taft, French horn; and Albert Scott, trombone. Like the string quartette, the brass quartette did not have to play at the sub-district contest as there was no competition. They, too, won superior rating at the district contest and thus participated in the State Music Festival at Iowa City. The brass quartette practices after school in room 434. This group has played before our own school. The director of this group is Mr. Iverson, the head of Central's music department.

Central wishes much success to these two splendid musical organizations and hopes that they may go far in the world of music and continue to bring honors to their school. Their efficient directors also deserve much credit and good wishes in organizing these groups in the future.

VOCAL SOLOISTS AND ACCOMPANISTS

Another of the interesting projects of the music department of Central High School is to try out individuals for entrance in the vocal solo events of the contests. This is an important part of the contests, not only for the soloists entered, but also for the whole school. Central High was very fortunate during the past year in having such accomplished vocal soloists and groups, as to take, for the third consecutive year, the placque given to the school in Class AA that wins the most events in the district contest.

The procedure of picking these soloists is very simple. Any vocalist, a member of the choir, chorus, or glee club, may enter the contest. In some of the groups eliminations are carried on in the group, and then these are the only ones who may enter. About two weeks before the sub-district contest, Central's home contest is held. The judges pick a representative in each field of voice. Those who sang for Central in the contest were Eleanor Riediger, soprano; Helen Jane Norris, contralto; Burton Kludt, tenor; and Lester Bashara, baritone. These Centralites sang in the sub-district contest at East High and the ratings they received were soprano, good; contralto, superior; baritone, superior; and tenor, superior. The three latter then went to LeMars, where the district contest was held, and there the contralto was given an excellent rating; the tenor an excellent, and the baritone a superior. Lester Bashara represented Central in the baritone-bass division of the state contest at Iowa City.

One of the most important factors in being able to sing well and win contests, is having complete faith and confidence in one's accompanist. One must practice with this pianist several times, in order to have a feeling of surety on both sides. The job of accompanying soloists requires a great deal of time and effort. Those who did this work during the past year for both vocal and instrumental soloists were Virginia Cook, Bernice Lynberg, Raymond Gusteson, Walter Tasker, Marian West, Martin Daskovsky, and Amy Lois Howe.

Central offers its thanks and congrats to these soloists and accompanists.

INSTRUMENTAL SOLOISTS

Central was very greatly honored during the past year to receive the 1936 plaque for the most points for winning events in the district music contest. A great many of these points were made by the instrumental soloists. This is another of the many opportunities offered to members of the Central music department.

The members of the band or orchestra who wished to try out for the various solo positions entered the home music contest. By means of this elimination process, the soloists who were to represent Central in the other music contests were chosen by competent judges. These soloists then went to the sub-district contest which was held this year at East High. The ones who received a superior rating in this contest advanced to the district contest at LeMars. The lucky ones then progressed to the State Music Festival at Iowa City.

Those who represented Central in the sub-district contest and won superior ratings were Bernice Lynberg, piano; Richard Verstegen, trumpet; Albert Scott, trombone; Lester Lazriowich, clarinet; Gordon Taft, French horn; Walter Brink, tuba; Charline Marshall, violin; Bob Feik, viola; Bob Feick, cello; and Lauretta King, bass viol. Jane Knupp was judged excellent for her selection on the bassoon, and Billy Bolton received good for her flute selection.

All those who received superior ratings went to the district contest at LeMars. Those who received superior ratings at this contest were Gordon Taft, French horn; Bob Feik, viola; Bob Feick, cello; and Lauretta King, bass viol. Those who received excellent at the district contest were Bernice Lynberg, piano; Richard Verstegen, trumpet; Albert Scott, trombone; Lester Lazriowich, clarinet; Troxel Miller, baritone horn; Walter Brink, tuba; and Charline Marshall, violin.

Those who won superior ratings advanced to the State Contest at Iowa City. The instrumental soloists who represented Central at Iowa City were Gordon Taft, French horn; Bob Feik, viola; Bob Feick, cello; and Lauretta King, bass viol.

ANNUAL STAFF

The best place to cultivate keys to happiness is school, and the best part of school in which to do so is high school. After one is out of high school, one likes to recall the many happy times and the fine friends one had. To enable the alumni of Central to be better able to recall these pleasant memories, Central puts out a yearbook every year. The name of the Central High Annual is the Maroon and White.

The annual is made up and composed by a staff of workers who are chosen by Mr. Racker and the students carried over from the previous year. There are three positions which are apprenticed, and these students are on the annual board for two consecutive years. The positions are those of editor, assistant editor, and copy editor, which last is a new position created this year. The photographer must also be a member of the board for two years, as the experience is necessary. Centralites who wish to try out for the Annual Board take a test some time in May. Those who will be on the next year's staff are chosen on the grounds of these exams and grades. Since this work takes a study period, the students who make the annual must maintain a high scholastic standing.

This year the personnel of the Annual Staff was made up of Marjorie Howard, editor; Bernice Jepson, assistant editor; Katherine Hampe, copy editor; Ellis Brodkey, business manager; Ruth Serrill, literary editor; Roma Hough, assistant literary editor; Betty Rew, associate editor; Anna Marie Larson, photography editor; Ethel Nelson, assistant plotography editor; Harry Burdick, sports editor; Elaine Nelson and Milton Galinsky, artists; Don Johnson and Warren Dunkle, ad solicitors; Frances Oakleaf, Mildred Nelson, and Grace Noreen, typists; John Schott and Don De Roos, photographers; and Nancy Arthur, Bernice Carlson, and Eleanor Riediger, apprentices. The Maroon and White is composed in room 130 and in the room behind it. The staff has its own photographers, except for the senior pictures.

Mr. Racker is the member of the faculty who has charge of this enterprise, and does splendid work.

The Annual Staff enjoyed this work and deserves Central's thanks and congratulations.

RECORD STAFF

Another pleasant feature of attending school at Central High School is the opportunity of being engaged in so many interesting activities and organizations. Of course, everyone cannot be in every organization, but everyone does like to know what goes on in the channels of school life in which he is not interested. In Central High the splendid school paper, the Record, provides this information. This is valuable, not only to the students who read the paper, but is also very valuable to those who receive training by working to produce it.

The staff that composes the Record is chosen by Mr. Fischer and the editor, and some other members of the staff. Tryouts are held during the semester before, and those who wish to try out take a test, and the selections are made from these. The editor must first be a copy editor for a semester.

Those who composed the Record Staff for the first semester of the past year were: Dorothy Maxeiner, editor; Robert Knoepfler and Betty Osnowitz, copy editors; Miriam Barish, features; Vilmer Berger and Alvin Brodkey, sports; Margaret Holmes, proofs; Palmer Finsvik, business manager; Alice Cusack, Sylvia Herzoff, Mary Kingsbury, Mary Jane Nelson, Miriam Nordstrom, Bernice Rumsch, and Ruth Singer, reporters; Richard Davis and Sam Edelman, advertising solicitors; Wilma Nihlen and Louise Wilson, typists. The students who published the Central High Record for the second semester were: Robert Knoepfler, editor; Betty Osnowitz, assistant editor; Ruth Singer and Bernice Rumsch, copy editors; Miriam Barish, features; Vilmer Berger and Alvin Brodkey, sports; Alice Cusack, proofs; Joe Pechacek, business manager; Dorothy Maxeiner, special; Sylvia Herzoff, Mary Kingsbury, Mary Jane Nelson, and Miriam Nordstrom, reporters; Tino Konopisos and Lucille Pippett, advertising solocitors; and Wilma Nihlen and Louise Wilson, typists.

Mr. E. W. Fischer is the excellent adviser who helps to produce the Record. Central owes him a vote of thanks.

The Record comes out every week of the school year, except when there is vacation. The paper is printed in Central's own printshop. Evidence of the worth of the paper is in its membership in the National Scholastic Press Association, Columbia Scholastic Press Association, and Quill and Scroll. Central is proud of its Record.

DEBATE AND DRAMATICS

DEBATE SEASON

Central High School maintains two courses in Speech. The beginning course of one semester is open to all students enrolled in school, but the advanced course is limited to the students who show special talent and ability in beginning speech. It is from the advanced course that school contestants are chosen to represent Central in Debate, Oratory, and Extemporaneous Speaking. These representatives compete with surrounding schools in contests and also participate in competition in the Iowa High School Forensic League, to determine the State Champions in the above three phases of speech work. From this advanced course students are also selected to appear before local organizations and over radio station KSCJ on topics of community and public interest.

During the school year 1935-36 the pupils in advanced speech participated in sixty-three separate speech engagements.

In the field of debating, all members enrolled in the advanced speech class studied the question: Resolved: That the several states should enact legislation providing for a system of complete medical service available to all citizens at public expense. From this group six students actually competed against other schools. Those supporting the affirmative of the question were Sidney Kalin, Miriam Blank, Robert Knoepfler, and Nathaniel Singer. The participants on the negative were Gretchen Krenz and Joe Maron.

Tournament competition in debating consumed the major part of the debate schedule. In all, five tournaments were entered.

The first tournament was held at Spencer, Iowa, on January 11th, Central participating in six debates, winning four and losing two. Victories were achieved over teams from Emmetsburg, Fort Dodge, Sheldon, and Worthington, Minnesota. Decisions were lost to Spencer and Mason City.

In the second tournament, held at East High School, Sioux City, February 22nd, five contests appeared on the schedule for Central's arguers. Victories in these conflicts totaled three, and losses, two. Schools met and defeated were Ames, Iowa;

Bottom Row: Krenz, Maron, Kalin, Singer.

Emerson, Nebraska; and Elk Point, South Dakota. Losses were suffered at Yankton, South Dakota; and Onawa, Iowa. Sandwiched between tournaments were dual debates of a decision and non-decision variety. Such teams as Sioux Falls, Elk Point, Beresford, and Orange City were met.

Tournament competition continued on March the sixth at LeMars, Iowa, where nine schools attended at the invitation tournament Western Union College. This gathering extended over two days and one evening. Five rounds of debating were entered by all schools. In this tournament, Central won all five contests and was declared the tournament champion, receiving as a reward a beautiful loving cup as the trophy for the first place winner. Central met and defeated schools from LeMars, Cherokee, Orange City, Tyndall, South Dakota, and Elk Point, South Dakota.

The Northwest District of the Iowa Forensic League held their district tournament at Spencer on March 13th and 14th. Six schools were represented and each school took part in eight rounds of debating. The two best ranking teams were to qualify for the state finals at Iowa City, Central meeting and defeating East High, on both sides of the question, Spencer, Storm Lake, Fort Dodge, and losing to Fort Dodge and Algona. By winning six out of eight contests, Central qualified for the State Contest.

The climax of the debate season occurred at the State Meet at Iowa City, March 26, 27, 28. Fourteen schools were represented by an affirmative and negative team. Each school was required to debate eight rounds, four affirmative and four negative. Central emerged with three wins and five losses, Fort Dodge winning the title.

In all, Central participated in thirty-nine debates, winning twenty-three, losing thirteen, and three were non-decision.

EXTEMPORANEOUS SPEAKING

Each year, Central High School selects a representative to the annual district extemporaneous speaking contest, which is held in conjunction with the other forms of speaking, to select the best two people from Northwest Iowa to appear at the State tournament. This representative is chosen from the advanced speech class, after a series of preliminary contests, and a final contest.

In the final contest there were five participants, namely, Ben Epstein, Gretchen Krenz, Robert Knoepfler, Joe Maron, and Nathaniel Singer. This contest was held in the high school auditorium on February 25 and was judged by W. L. Paxson, G. E. Nelson, and F. O. Racker, all members of the faculty of Central. Joe Maron, speaking on the subject, "The Last Naval Conference", was declared the winner, and the school's representative to the district contest.

ORATORY

As a third division of practical work offered in advanced speech, comes the field of oratory. Two separate contests occur during the course of the year. The first contest takes place early in the fall and is known as the State Radio Contest on the subject, "Tuberculosis". The second contest is held in the spring to select our representative for competition in the Iowa Forensic League.

The radio contest was held on November 24 and included seven people, who achieved the finals after a series of eliminations. Those participating were Joe Maron, Nathaniel Singer, Robert Knoepfler, Gretchen Krenz, Irvan Widesky, Miriam Blank, and Sidney Kalin. A group of people selected by the local tuberculosis association were asked to judge the contest. Their decision was in favor of Robert Knoepfler, whose original oration was entitled "Youth's Fight Against Tuberculosis", and thus he could be entered in the State Contest. From Thanksgiving to Christmas the orations were given over KSCJ and before many local organizations to stimulate interest in purchasing of Christmas seals.

The second oratory conflict occurred on February 25th and was composed of five entrants. They were Ben Epstein, Gretchen Krenz, Robert Knoepfler, Joe Maron, and Nathaniel Singer. Each contestant had to write an original oration on any subject he desired which had a maximum length of 1,000 words. The judges awarded the decision to Gretchen Krenz, who spoke on the subject, "America for Me".

Maron, Knoepfler, Krenz.

INDIVIDUAL REPRESENTATIVES

Robert Knoepfler's tuberculosis oration was entered in the state contest held at Des Moines. This contest is one in which the oration is judged on content alone. If the oration is one of the three best, then the contestant is invited to Des Moines to deliver his speech over radio station WHO. The judges of the final contest are located in different parts of the state and tune in on their radio to hear the contest. Robert's oration did not rank as one of the three highest, and so he was not accorded a privilege of speaking over radio station WHO.

The school representative in oratory in the Iowa Forensic League was Gretchen Krenz. The district contest to select the representative from Northwest Iowa to the state contest took place at Spencer on March 13th. Representatives from Fort Dodge, East High, Sioux City, and Humbolt were Central's competitors. Speaking her original oration on the subject, "America for Me", Miss Krenz placed third and thus was prohibited from continuing in the state series.

In extemporaneous speaking, Joe Maron represented Central at the district tournament at Spencer on March 13th. Competing with eight other schools and speaking on the subject, "Reclacitrant Austria", Joe tied for second place on judges rankings. In order to break the tie, contestants' percentages were computed and on this basis Joe received third rating, thus eliminating him from further competition.

DELPH-CHRESTO

We come now to a representation of an important key to happiness—the debate between Chresto and Elite, and the declamatory contest between Hep and Delph. Our friend, Mr. John Schmidt, from East High, judged for the evening.

The dramatic division of the conflict was waged first. Ruth Serrill, a Hep, spoke first on the program, giving her version of the "Perfect Tribute". The second speaker, Anthe Keriakedes, upheld the honors of Delph with a splendid presentation of "Petey and the Plan".

Neva Littlejohn, a brilliant Erodelphian, entertained her listeners with a humorous selection, "An Underhand Pass". The audience was much amused by the reading, "Letty Floats", as given by the winsome Hesperian, Miriam Nordstrom.

An interesting debate was held on the question, "Resolved: That the Iowa Chain Store Tax be Abolished". Two well-known Elites, Jack Brown and Ernest Jenkinson, spoke for the affirmative, and Sidney Kalin and Newton Sacks, intelligent Chrestos, maintained the negative side.

Mr. Schmidt gave some splendid criticisms of the readings, and awarded victory to Ruth Serrill and Miriam Nordstrom. After commenting on the debates, he honored the affirmative with first place. Heps and Elites were on the top for the evening, but there is another chance for Delphs and Chrestos.

Top Row: Bellaire, Jenkinson, J. Brown, Sullivan.

HEP-ELITE

During the second night of the declamatory contest, the Erodelphian and Philomathian Literary Societies were competing for the honor in the girls' declamatory contest. In the dramatic division the Delphs were represented by Lorine Weyenberg, who read "The Fifth Commandment". Dorothy Ann Roost upheld the Philo honor with the selection "Honey", which she gave very well.

The first humorous speaker of the evening was Julia Ann McDaniel, popular Philomathian, who read "Just One Big Happy Family", a very amusing and enjoyable selection. Doris Carlson, well known Delph, who read "At the Swimming Pool", put so much action into her reading that we all nearly fell into the pool with her.

The Chrestomathian and Civics Literary Societies debated the question, "Resolved: That the Iowa Chain Store Tax Should be Abolished." The Chrestos upheld the affirmative side, while the Kee-Ys debated for the negative. Warren Dunkel opened the debate for the Chrestos, and Ted Riley was the first speaker for the negatives. The other speakers were Francis Salem, Chresto, and Dallis Williams, Civics.

Again Mr. Schmidt of East High, judged. After offering many helpful criticisms, he announced his decision in favor of the Philo candidates in both divisions. The Chrestomathian speakers won the debate, which concluded the second night of the contest.

PHILO-CIVICS

On the last evening of the declamatory contest the conflict was staged between the Heps and Philos, with the Civics and Elites debating.

This was the deciding night for declams with honors equally divided between Hep and Philo. The versatile Mary Catherine Flynn speaking for the Philos, offered the selection, "They Grind Exceeding Small". The well-known Hep, Joanne Lewis, gave a splendid interpretation of "The White Hands of Telham".

In the humorous portion of the declamatory contest, Mina Hedeen, representing Hep, amused the audience by her funny actions and inflections in giving "Ma's Berth Night". Bernice Rumsch, the petite and intelligent Philo, then presented "Little Brothers Are That Way", in a very humorous fashion.

The debaters for the evening were Robert Anderson and Robert Knoepfler, popular members of Civics, who affirmed the question, and Bob Sullivan and Arthur Bellaire, Elites, who took the opposite side. The topic for the evening was, "Resolved: That the Iowa Chain Store Tax Should be Abolished".

Mr. Schmidt judged again, and awarded the decision in the dramatic division to Mary Catherine Flynn, and in the humorous division to Bernice Rumsch. The debate honors went to the Elites, Bob Sullivan and Art Bellaire.

Thus the inter-club declams and debates were concluded for the year 1935.

MID-YEAR CLASS PLAY

Perhaps one of the most important things to the graduation class is the presentation of the class play. Of course, all of the members of the class cannot have parts in the play, but nevertheless, every graduate is interested in the play and in trying out for it. The play which was presented by the mid-year class was "Migonette", a romantic drama in three acts.

The story of "Migonette" takes place in an old Southern home in Kentucky. The first and third acts take place in modern times, but the second act goes back to 1861. It is the story of a young girl, Rosa Mills, who has come to live with her grandfather, Jonathan Mills. She is engaged to young Justin Halliday, who is a descendent of David Frames. There has been a disagreement between David Frames and Jonathan Mills over Mignonette Deardon, whom both loved. The second act takes place while Mignonette, Jonathan, and David are young. The story tells of the difficulties which Rosa and Justin go through to prove to Jonathan that his beliefs are wrong.

The part of Rosa Mills and Mignonette Deardon was portrayed by Joanne Lewis. Leonard Avery played the part of Justin Halliday. Jonathan Mills was played by Alan Gliessman. The comedy lead was taken by Helen Jane Thompson, as Mammy Lou. Bruce Clifton was David Frames. Other members of the cast were: Betty Feyder, Margaret Gusteson, Mavis Laybourn, and Virginia Craven, members of the ladies' aid; Roland Morrison, Deacon Parker; Marian Hansen, Elizabeth Maxwell; Anna Lou Reeves, Anna Bryant; Margaret Ann Dahl, Alice Fox; Barbara Eales, Gladys Dyke; Irwin Johnson, Paul Deardon; Ray Mitchell, Henry Spencer; Lyle Bower, Simon Clay; Lester Vander Haar, young Jonathan Mills; and Newton Sacks, Mr. Mills, his father.

The splendid director of this play was Miss Mildred Elliott, Central's excellent expression teacher. She deserves much credit for the success of the play, and Central owes her a huge vote of thanks for producing such splendid class plays.

JUNE CLASS PLAY

Experience is the best teacher in the search for any of the numerous keys to happiness. Dramatics is an art popular to everyone, and Central is no exception. Each class graduating from Central presents a play. The play that was chosen for the June Class was the popular comedy, "Brewster's Millions".

The story of the play is built around a hero to whom unusual happenings occur. This interesting young man, Monty Brewster, wakes suddenly to find himself heir to a million dollars. The first news hardly becomes cold when Monty is called upon by a representative of a law firm with the information that a wealthy uncle whom he had forgotten had died and left his fortune to Monty, but with the provisions that every cent of the million be spent in a year, legitimately, with receipts, acceptable to the administrator, to show for it. Monty accepts and gets busy spending that million. The opposite lead of the play is Margaret Gray, better known as Peggy, who is an old sweetheart of Monty's. Monty has four male friends who are sons of the idle rich. These are Archibald Vanderpool, Joseph MacCloud, Frank Bragdon and Nopper Harrison. Mrs. Dan De Mille is a society matron who is also a friend of Monty's. Rawles is the butler of the play, and Barbara Drew is the typical society girl. Mr. Grant is the attorney who administers the estate. Monty tries many schemes in his effort to spend the million dollars. Among these is financing an opera which is failing. The star of this opera is Trixie Clayton, and the producer, Subway Smith. Another enterprise is financing a failing bank, the president of which is Colonel Drew. He opens an office and hires as his secretary, Miss Boynton. There too, appear the first and second office boys. Monty contracts to publish a book written by Janice Armstrong, a platonic "good fellow". He buys a yacht and cruises around the world. On the boat are Captain Perry, the Quartermaster, and sailors. In his travels he meets Monsieur Bargle. Another interesting character is Thomas.

Central owes a vote of thanks to Miss Elliott and the cast.

FOOTBALL

On September second, the first plunk of the pigskin was heard on the Central gridiron. As the sixty some candidates trotted onto the field only four lettermen were seen in the lineup: Kennedy in the backfield, and Fobes, Ellerd, and Jacobi in the line. Thus, an especially green team this year means plenty of work for Coach Martin, as well as the boys, and, with the tough Missouri Valley Conference teams facing them for the second year, the Central gridders have an extremely difficult schedule.

Central 54—Spencer 6

Central's Little Maroons unlocked the doors to its 1935 football season with a smashing victory over Spencer, 54 to 6. Kennedy and Stickels were the main guns on the offense, leading the fast attack with two touchdowns apiece. Nash, Wendzillo, Sogge, and Bob Hettinger made the remaining four counters with one apiece. The line smashing of Stickels and the accurate kicking of Nash and Hettinger accounted for six successful conversions. The greatest thrill of the game early in the fourth quarter was when George Wendzillo, on an intercepted pass, raced 85 yards down the sidelines for a touchdown.

CENTRAL 45—ESTHERVILLE 6

Central added a second game to the victory list, as they pounded a hard fighting Estherville team 45 to 6. Scoring all their counters in the second and third quarters, the Little Maroons rolled relentlessly over the Estherville line and skirted the ends for one first down after another. Again the shifty ball carrying and the accurate passing of Jack Kennedy accounted for most of the touchdowns. Nash and Francis Hettinger each connected with a pair of perfect passes for two counters apiece. Bob Hettinger contributed one. A kick by Nash, a line plunge by Stickles and a pass from Freerks to F. Hettinger accounted for three extra points.

CENTRAL 25—FORT DODGE 0

Central continued its victory march when they invaded Fort Dodge territory to hand the Dodgers a 25 to 0 defeat. Central looked like a state champion throughout the entire game. They scored twice in the first quarter on long hard drives, tearing through the line for one first down after another. Scoring all four of the Maroon markers, one of which was a 52-yard run, Jack Kennedy increased his bid for the all state halfback berth. However, he received wonderful support from his backfield, especially Stickles, and the forward wall had never looked better since the start of the season.

CENTRAL 38—OMAHA TECH 14

licking a powerful Omaha team 38 to 14. Both teams got off to a slow start, with the half ending in a 14 to 14 tie, but, as the third quarter began, the Martinmen opened up and ripped the Omaha boys apart. Kennedy led again with four touchdowns, with Stickles and Red Salzman each adding one. Stickles probably presented the most thrilling run this time. With Central's ball on its own 40-yard stripe, Stickles took the play on an off tackle smash and, reversing his field, eluded the entire secondary, clicking off 60 yards and a touchdown.

Central 19—Denison 6

The Central team, a little over confident, battled hard for their fifth consecutive victory in defeating Denison 19 to 6. The down-state boys were tough, playing good, clean, hard football, and it seemed that the Little Maroons worked harder for this victory than they had for any of the others. Denison presented a back almost if not equally as fast as Jack Kennedy, and the Centralite's flashy little halfback had a hard time in getting loose. Again Kennedy chalked up all three touchdowns, with Ellerd playing wonderful ball at his tackle post.

the season, 8 to 0. As for the game, no alibis can be offered, still no Centralite can be ashamed of his team. On the defense the Maroon wave was a stone wall, but on the offense they lacked the fight which showed up so well in the previous tilts. The two teams were almost as evenly matched as two teams possibly could be. The first half was played almost continually in the middle of the field, neither team advancing dangerously close to either goal. However, late in the second period, Lincoln was given the first chance to chalk up their first touchdown on an intercepted pass. The second half was almost a continuation of the first, with a safety accounting for the Links' other two points. Lincoln, with its twelve lettermen, was a powerful team, and was undoubtedly the toughest team Central had met.

Central 12—Sioux Falls 6

After being halted abruptly by Lincoln the week before, Central started over again by whipping Washington High of Sioux Falls 12 to 6. The score implies a close game, but the Centralites played far superior ball from the second quarter on, missing three first downs by inches which might have led to touchdowns. The boys from Central were caught flat-footed in the first quarter when Sioux Falls on a lateral, raced across for the first touchdown. Kennedy came back strong in the second period to score on a return punt aided by perfect blocking. He cracked the center of the Sioux Falls line later in the game to score again.

Central 18—East 13

Central's rollicking Little Maroons smashed to bits East's hopes for a city championship when they clinched an 18 to 13 victory and their tenth consecutive city title in probably the hardest fought battle this season. It was a case of too much Central line strength, the Little Maroons launching a withering attack to score the touchdown they needed. There were few passes and few deceptive plays—just straight football. The outlook was gloomy in the first quarter when the Black Raiders skirted across for the first touchdown. The aerial route, Sogge to Nash, clicked to end the half; East 7, Central 6. A 25-yard run by Jack Kennedy and a 70-yard march accounted for Central's other two markers.

Central 13—South Omaha 0

Central closed its 1935 football season right with a 13 to 0 victory over a weak South Omaha team. Penalties, which have proved to be the Little Maroons' evil all season, prevented them from being on the long end of a trouncing score. The Omaha boys were stopped cold in their tracks, being in Central territory once in the game, resulting from a long pass late in the last quarter. In the second quarter, Jack Kennedy, playing his last game for Central, flipped a pass to Nash, who went across for the first touchdown. Kennedy cracked center in the last quarter from the 5-yard stripe to tally again.

As we look back on our 1935 grid season we find it has been a most successful one. Eight victories were listed in the win column out of a total of nine games.

The boys from Central, fifteen of them having played their last game for the Maroon and White, battled their way into a tie for second place in the Missouri Valley Conference, and with eight men back next year and two with some first squad experience coming up from the second string, we will certainly have something to look forward to.

CENTRAL SECONDS

Central Seconds 19—South Sioux City 6

The shifty ball carrying of Wagers and the hard line plunging of Stine gave the Central second team a 19 to 6 victory over the light but fast South Sioux City seconds at Gilman Terrace. Stine crashed through tackle and raced 25 yards for the first Maroon marker. Larson kicked the extra point. Leading Central's attack from his left half position, Wagers drove through the South Sioux line for the other two counters.

Central Seconds 32—Vermillion Seconds 0

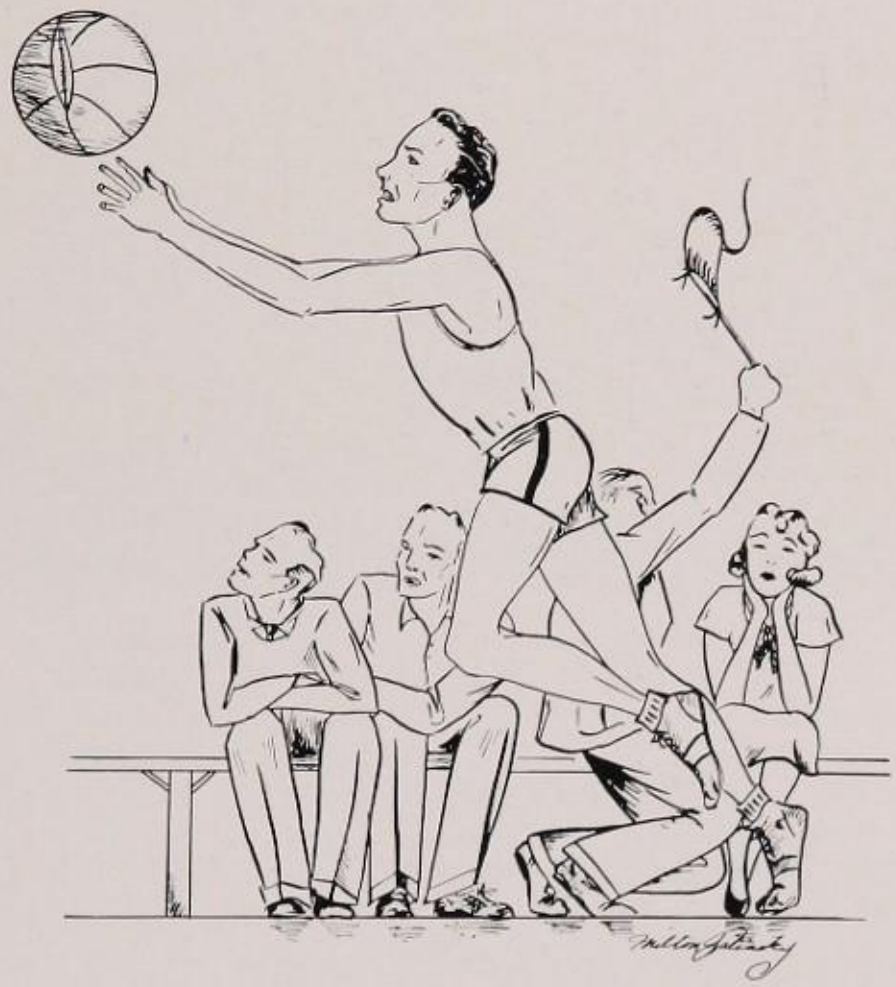
Almost repeating last year's score, the Central seconds rolled relentlessly over the Vermillion seconds 32 to 0. Stine and Wagers were the leading ball luggers, with Kennedy and Larson snagging the passes. Wagers began the race with a 30-yard jaunt. Stine carried the ball on the next play for another 30 yards and a touchdown. The Little Maroons marched the pigskin down the field again and again, and they continued this type of football throughout the game.

Central Seconds 19—LeMars 14

The Central seconds strung up a third victim as they added another bid for an undefeated season in winning over the LeMars seconds 19 to 14. LeMars presented a hard charging team, much tougher than any team the seconds had met and the Centralites found their offense hard to stop, once it started clicking. Scoring honors were divided three ways this time with Stine, Wagers, and Larson scoring.

Central Seconds 0—East Seconds 13

All dreams of an undefeated season vanished for the Central seconds as they dropped a 13 to 0 defeat in their annual clash with the East seconds. As the third quarter got under way a 25-yard pass gave East their first touchdown. A Central punt was blocked on their own 20-yard stripe to put the ball in scoring position. Monroe plunged over for the second Orange and Black touchdown.



BASKETBALL

Let us look over the seventy-five prospects for the 1935-36 basketball season. Four lettermen back to fill in the first string positions, Nash, Hine, Sogge, and Freerks. The rear court to be held down by Junior Nash, last year's first string guard, and stocky Bill Stickles will undoubtedly be his running mate. Dick Hine and Melvin Sogge are to be seen at the forwards, with Burdette Freerks receiving first call for the pivot post. With this bunch, and with some men with second team experience coming up, Central can look forward to a team as good, if not better, than last year's.

Central 29—Hawarden 10

Hawarden started the 1935-36 basketball schedule by bowing humbly before a fast Central team 29 to 10. Central presented a speedy basketball, accurate passing, in fact, everything needed to win games, and the Little Maroons should develop into a real team before the season is very old. Captain Freerks led the attack and took scoring honors with four field goals to his credit. Dick Hine followed with three baskets. As said before, the Little Maroons' defense was powerful, but their defense has yet to be given a real test.

Central 45—Council Bluffs 22

Central broke into the Missouri Valley Conference race for the first time this season by defeating Abe Lincoln of Council Bluffs 45 to 22. Council Bluffs was a good individual team but they were inexperienced and lacked the necessary teamwork. Setting off to a fast start and shaking Council Bluffs' defense loose, Central led at the half 28 to 7. Hine received top honors this time, leading the scoring with 13 points.

Central 43—Omaha Central 22

Coach Martin's Little Maroon cagers put in another bid for the Missouri Valley Conference honors by whipping Omaha Central, 43 to 22. The game never lacked excitement for a moment, but Central grabbed an early lead and held it through the game. Hine and Sogge shared scoring honors with nine points apiece. Freerks, pivot man, came next with eight, and Brodkey, the Junior's contribution to the first squad, followed closely with seven points.

Even the best of teams must lose games, and so it was with Central, when they dropped their first defeat of the season to Sioux Falls, 39 to 34. Sweeping into an early lead, the Sioux Falls boys were a little too much for the Little Maroons although the lead exchanged hands several times. On the whole, Central's offense was much better but could not seem to find the basket, something upon which Sioux Falls capitalized. Sioux City's scoring honors this time went to Melvin Sogge who chalked up eleven points. Dick Hine, Sogge's forward mate, trailed clasely behind him with nine.

Central 31—Lincoln 35

Still smarting from their first defeat of the season, Central's Little Maroons dropped a Missouri Valley Conference battle and their second straight defeat, to Lincoln High, 35 to 31. Led by Junior Nash, the Sioux Cityans carried up a rally to the short end of a 32 to 31 count, before a free throw and a field goal in the last 40 seconds of play put the game on ice for Lincoln. Junior Nash led Central's scoring with five field goals and two free throws.

Central 36—Omaha Tech 12

The Little Maroons played host to a rangy Omaha Tech team and the game proved to be a disastrous event for the invaders. As usual, the Martinmen started off with a bang. Grabbing an early lead, the Centralites caught the Omaha boys flat footed and led at the half, 24 to 7. It was the Techster's third game of the week and they soon began to show the strains. Sparkplugs in the Little Maroon attack were Burdette Freerks at center, and Dick Hine at forward. Both tallied eleven points.

Central 33—LeMars 21

Central added another win when they easily defeated the LeMars Bulldogs, 33 to 21. Their winning streak having been broken by Sioux Falls and Lincoln a week or two ago, the Hilltoppers started off again in tip-top shape and their baskets dropped in from all corners of the court. The scoring of Nash and Freerks alone would have been enough to win, Nash taking scoring honors with fourteen points. Freerks was next in line with nine.

F. Hettinger | B. Hettinger | Nash | Stickels

Central 35—Estherville 17

The Hilltoppers left Estherville by the roadside 35 to 17, in a game packed with thrills and excitement. The Estherville boys bowed humbly under an avalanche of scoring led by Dick Hine, who chalked up ten points to take scoring honors. Dick has been doing superb work in the last few games and should prove to be one to cover up the loss of Burdette Freerks.

Central 53—Sheldon 22

Central High School climaxed a successful road trip into northern Iowa by swamping the Sheldon High cagers 53 to 22. The Little Maroons dropped Estherville by the wayside the night before. The feature of the game was Dick Hine's sensational basket shooting which added another sparkling performance to the one already hung up in the Estherville game. Hine caged ten goals for twenty points and high scoring honors.

Central 38—Cherokee 21

Avenging the defeat of the Sophomores at the hands of the Cherokee seconds, the Central firsts jumped ahead after a slow start and pounded out a 38 to 21 victory over the Indians. Surprise feature of the game was the sensational work of Al Brodkey at Hine's forward post. Brodkey, substituting for Hine, who was eliminated on fouls, dropped in twelve points to lead his team in scoring. The game started slowly, both teams being unable to find the hoop, but the Little Maroons led at the half, 18 to 12.

Central 22—Spirit Lake 12

With only two more games on their schedule, Central won again to make another bid for a successful season. So far the team has lost only two games on its fifteen game program. The loser this time was Spirit Lake, dropping the game 22 to 12.

Central 32—East 20

A fighting Little Maroon team outclassed an East High quintet 32 to 20, to give Central its first basketball victory over the Orange and Black since the 1932 tournament, and its first city championship since 1928. Such speed, such teamwork certainly has not been seen so far in our schedule. East's main threats, Koberg and Fleming, were bottled up by Francis Hettinger and Junior Nash, respectively, who did excellent work in the rear court. Dick Hine led Central's attack with fourteen points.

Freerks Hine Brodkey

Central 31—Fort Dodge 22

Central's Little Maroons wound up their regular schedule and ended a successful season by trimming Fort Dodge, a team that has always been a tough spot on the program, 31 to 18. Central was out in front 21 to 17 as the last period began, when they cut loose a barrage that swamped Fort Dodge.

Central 30—Akron 22

Though never in danger, Central had to fight with everything it had as it blazed its way into the semi-finals of the sectional tournament by turning back Akron in the Class A battling. The contest was a rough and ready combat in which 29 personal fouls were chalked up, 17 of which Central was guilty.

Central 37—Lawton 28

Lawton, once a Class B team, fought the Little Maroons with every weapon only to lose, 37 to 28. Hine and Heldridge were eliminated early on the fourth quarter on personals, but Junior Nash carried on to ring up 17 points for his work.

Central 18—East 29

All memories of the intra-city title and all hopes for state championship for Central as they dropped the sectional finals to their friends from East, 29 to 18. The first quarter was entirely in favor of Central but after that East sank a steady rain of fielders. However, for a full period, it seemed that Central had snapped out of it, but East's defense kept Central's passers pretty much away from any territory suitable for a shot.

RESERVES

Central Reserves 26—Hawarden Reserves 2

The Central Reserves started their 1935-36 basketball season with a trouncing victory over the Hawarden Reserves, 26 to 2. Central broke into an early lead to lead at the half 10 to 0. Jones and F. Hettinger held down the guard posts very well, Hawarden getting their two points on free tosses.

Central Reserves 50—Marcus Firsts 18

Central's Little Maroon Reserves played their last game of 1935 and prepared to start the new year right by knocking the first squad of Marcus out of their path to the tune of 50 to 18.

Central Seconds 30—Westfield 17

Coach Stevens' sophomore cagers inaugurated their 1936 basketball season with a sweeping victory over the fast first team of Westfield, 30 to 17. This was the seconds' first game—the other games, with Marcus and the Hawarden seconds, being played by the first reserves. Wagers was a high point man with five baskets. The starting lineup: Verstegen, center; Goodnow and Salzman, forwards; Larson and Shindler, guards.

Central Sophs 18—LeMars Seconds 10

The second team's speedy attack and deceptive passing swept the LeMars seconds off their feet as the invaders carried off a close 18 to 10 victory. Central counted mostly on short shots against which the LeMars defense was powerless.

Central Sophs 33—Holly Springs 20

Following their victory over the LeMars seconds, the Central Sophomores registered another victory over a Holly Springs cage team, 33 to 20. The Sophs started slowly but managed to hold a 17 to 10 lead at the high. High scoring for Central went to Johnny Suknot, who dropped in eleven points.

Central Seconds 22—Luton 21

Luton was added to the Central seconds' list of victims as they dropped a close game to the Central cagers, 22 to 21. The first half looked like a victory for Luton as the lead exchanged hands several times, and Luton led at the half. The Little Maroons came back strong in the second half to take an early lead. Wagers took scoring honors with eight points to his credit. Johnny Suknot came next with five.

Central Seconds 21—LeMars 20

Again the Sophomores registered a last minute rally to edge out a 21 to 20 victory over the LeMars seconds for the second time this season. Looking like a one point victory for the Bulldogs, Wagers sunk a shot in the last eight seconds to put the Little Maroons one point in the lead. The whistle sounded with LeMars vainly trying to work through Central's tightened defense. Individual scoring honors for Central went to Wagers who captured seven points.

Central Seconds 24—Cherokee Seconds 25

The Sophomores just missed by the skin of their teeth and landed on the short end of a 25 to 24 score as they suffered their first defeat of the season at the hands of the Cherokee seconds. Like the Luton game, the last two or three minutes were worth the price of admission, before a free throw put the game on ice for the Indians. Paul Salzman and "Swede" Larson were high scoring men, both tallying seven points.

Central Seconds 25—East Seconds 21

As a curtain raiser to the first team game, the Central seconds took the city second team championship from the hands of the Orange and Black seconds in a close battle, 25 to 21. It was anybody's game up to the closing whistle, but the Hilltoppers cut loose in the third quarter to gain a lead the Black Raiders were unable to overcome. Uknes, Coach Stevens' new addition to the first stringers, starred in the important game to sink eleven points.

Central Seconds 14—Luton 18

The Central seconds dropped their second game of the season on their next to the last game to the Luton firsts, 18 to 14. However, they fought hard and the game was by no means won until the closing whistle. The game got off to a slow start with Luton leading by the narrow margin of 8 to 6 at the half time. The second period was a repetition of the first, with Luton holding their close lead to win. High point honors for Central went to Casey, who turned out a good game at forward.

TEAM MANAGERS AND MASCOT

Let us now turn to another field in the sport world at Central. Probably the most thankless job but one of invaluable assistance to the sports department is that of the team manager, at the head of which is Joe Suknot, senior team manager. Unable to participate, but a lover of all sports, Joe turns to the only other line in the sports department. Having filled Kenny Bailey's shoes last mid-year, this great responsibility has now rested on his shoulders for a year and a half. Spending every night after school during his school year, one will always fine Joe out and on the job in the track, football, and basketball seasons. Not only is his time out of school devoted to his tedious work, but he also gives up a study period each day in order to help in the equipment room. All help a great deal and this makes him a great favorite with Central's athletes. The manager receives no glory, no thanks, yet a team would be snowed under were it not for their team managers, and we take this opportunity to show our appreciation.

Another job in the same line which cannot be forgotten, is that of Joe's understudy, the Junior team manager. Taking over Joe's former duties last fall at Joe's promotion to Senior manager is Jay Jacobi who assumed this responsibility. Like Joe, Jay too is always faithful in his work, sticking to his job and helping Joe in every way he can, which makes this partnership of Junior and Senior manager a success. Jay is a lover of all sports and, if he does not develop into an athlete before Joe's graduation in mid-year, he will be well qualified to take over the duties of Senior manager.

For many years Gene Martin, nine-year-old son of Coach Martin, has earned the name of mascot for all lines of athletics in Central—football, basketball, and track squads alike—and he certainly deserves a write-up in this yearbook. Undoubtedly inheritance or just the plain boy in him, he is another lover of sports, never missing a game or meet.

TRACK SEASON

For quite a while, each year has shown a steady decline in the interest of the boys for track, and 1936 was no exception. In fact, the turnout for track this year was so scanty that it was declared this sport would be discontinued if more enthusiasm was not shown. From the largest school in the state of Iowa and from a school where there are over one thousand boys, only thirty-three turned out for workouts.

However, these thirty-three, among whom were several lettermen from last year carried on for Central, and did a good job of it. In viewing the Central tracksters, six lettermen returned to round out the first squad. They were Klinkhammer, Juzek, Naeve, Adams, Simpson, and Wendzillo. With the other new additions, Calligan,

CARROLL RELAYS

Central figured prominently in the eleventh annual Carroll relays, although point totals were not awarded. Central track men chalked up one second place, two third places, and five fourth places, at the same time coming out far ahead of East, who won one third and one fourth. Joe Calligan brought home honors by placing second in the high hurdles.

Naeve in the shotput and Wright, Riley, Adams, and Klinkhammer in the two-mile relay, placed third. Fourth places were garnered by Juzek in the shotput, Juzek, Nash, Nave, and Simpson in the half-mile relay. Wendzillo in the javelin throw, Simpson, Juzek, Nash, and Konopisos in the medley, and Simpson in the hundred yard.

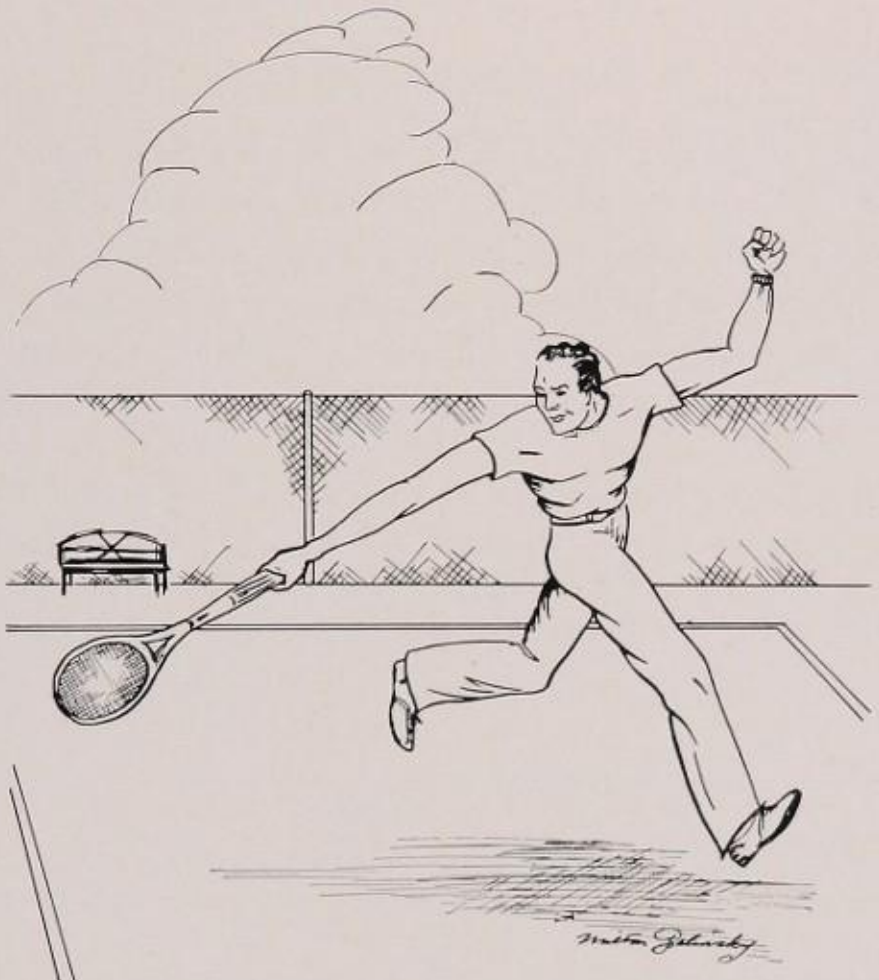
ALTA MEET

Three hundred athletes from twenty schools of northwest and central Iowa competed in the second annual Alta relays. Fort Dodge was high in points with 42. Central came fourth with 28 points, one jump behind our friends from East, who collected 32. One Central first was placed when George Wendzillo outdistanced the field in the javelin throw with 160 feet, 5 inches. Also the two-mile relay team placed the only Central second. Calligan boosted Central when he finished third in the 220-yard high hurdles and likewise in the 880-yard relay team. In the weight division Juzek landed a fourth place with the discus throw. Simpson and Nash also finished fourth in the 100-yard and 440-yard dash, respectively. Two fifth places were taken by Central in the medley and mile relay.

ESTHERVILLE MEET

Almost repeating their performance at Alta, Central landed in a tie for fourth place with Spirit Lake in the invitational meet at Estherville in which thirty-two schools participated to smash many previous records. New records were set in the shot put, javelin throw, and 880-yard run. Two Central firsts were garnered when Naeve won the broad jump with a distance of 19 feet, 11¾ inches. The football shuttle team composed of Naeve, Juzek, Salzman, and Nash also placed first with a time of 28.5 seconds. Central took second in the high hurdles as Joe Calligan finished a few feet behind his old rival, Wassam of Fort Dodge. The javelin throw was also placed in Central's column of seconds with George Wendzillo heading the spear. The discus throw was also placed for Central by Juzek, who threw it into fifth place. In the 440-yard and mile relay, Central finished third, and in the 440-yard dash, Junior Nash tied with Wassam for fourth.

With only three meets left on the schedule it seemd that the track season should be a very successful one. On May 9th the boys journeyed to the district meet at Cherokee, on May 12th to LeMars, and on May 23rd finishing at the conference meet in Omaha. Probable starters and point winners will be Simpson or Kennedy in the dashes; relay teams consisting of Konopisos, Wright, Adams, Juzek, and Nash. The weight division will be carried through by Wendzillo, Juzek, and Naeve. A good showing in the district meet will bring the boys through to the state meet which is represented by the leading track squads of Iowa.



INTRA-MURAL

CLASS BASKETBALL

Under the supervision of Coach Stevens and the watchful gaze of Mr. Martin, the Juniors captured both the first and second team championships in the 1935 class tournament. The Juniors started off with a bang to trounce the Sophomore firsts, 46 to 10, in the initial game of the tournament. It was a game of deceptive passing and fast playing on the part of the Juniors. Nothing much can be said of the Sophomores. For the large part they played a defensive game and did not have a real chance to show their offense.

For the Juniors, Green looked best as high point man with 16 points. The Hettinger boys also performed well. For the Sophomores, Goodnow and Suknot came out on top with four points. The starting lineup for the Juniors: B. Hettinger and Greene, forwards; Maddux, center, Demaine and F. Hettinger, guards. For the Sophs: Goodnow and Suknot, forwards; Verstegen, center; Larson and Econ, guards.

Senior-Sophomore Game

The second game proved almost as one-sided as the first, as the Sophomores dropped their second straight game and were completely out of the picture to the tune of 35 to 9.

The starting lineup for the Seniors: Beggs and Brandenburg, forwards; Courey, center; Lasensky and Jones, guards.

For the Sophomores: Goodnow and Suknot, forwards; Verstegen, center; Larson and Econ, guards. Lasensky and Brandenburg shared the honors for the Seniors with nine points apiece. Goodnow and Paul Salzman, Central's stocky little football player, divided honors for the Sophomores.

The Seniors played a brand of basketball similar to that of the Juniors in the preceding game, taking the ball down the floor again and again with the humble Sophs playing almost always on the defense. Comparing the scores of the Junior and Senior games with the Sophomores, the Junior-Senior game will certainly be something to look forward to.

Junior-Senior Game

The Juniors and Seniors returned to the court for the final and most exciting game of the tournament and presented a game expected by all. However, even close games must have a winner and the Juniors obliged by whittling out a 21 to 20 victory to capture the inter-class championship.

It was a game of wonderful defense, fast offense, accurate passing, and sharp shooting. First one team had the edge, and then the other.

For the Juniors, Greene dropped in three baskets to take the scoring honors with six points. Maddux also looked good. Jones was high point man for the Seniors with four points.

The starting lineup for the Juniors was as follows: Bob Hettinger and Green, forwards; Maddux, center; DeMaine and Francis Hettinger, guards. For the Seniors: Beggs and Brandenburg, forwards; Courey, center; Jones and Lasensky, guards.

INTER-CLUB BASKETBALL GAMES

For many years it has been the tradition of the three boys' clubs, Civics, Elite, and Chresto to participate in sports of various kinds. The clubs were first organized entirely on a literary basis, but the sports were soon inducted. This especially found favor with boys who found no other recreation, being too old for gym classes and not taking part in any scholastic sports. As each season rolls around club tournaments are held in football, basketball, and baseball. Unfortunately there was no football tournament held and the baseball came too late for the yearbook. However, the regular basketball games were held with the Chrestos and Elites drawing for the first round. Elites also drew for the second round with Civics, and, therefore, the greater chance for elimination.

There were many promising stars turning out for workouts. In the Civics camp were Brandenburg, Beggs, Verstegen, Lasensky, Larson, and Suknot. For the Elites the most promising were Sanders, Cours, Jones, and Haley. For the Chrestos, Galinsky, Kline, Herzoff, and Lazriowich.

Chresto 23—Elite 21

Presenting a fast breaking offense and tight defense, the Chresto basketball team defeated the Elites by one basket in the first round of the inter-club tournament. There was little scoring in the first quarter, both teams missing the hoop quite consistently. However, they soon found their eye and field goals dropped in for both teams. As the score implies it was anybody's game till the whistle. Lazriowich led his mates for the Chrestos with seven points, with Herzoff stringing closely behind with six. For the Elites, Jones excelled with twelve.

Civics 24—Elites 19

The Civics basketeers poured a deadly barrage of field goals on to the Elites as the latter dropped their second straight game, 24 to 19. As a result of the loss they were eliminated from the tournament and lost all hopes of competing for the title. Unlike the other game, this was off to a fast start. "Swede" Larson, newly elected Kee-Y, was high point man at his guard post, sinking three baskets for six points. or the Elites, Dick Cours led the scoring with eight points.

Civics 41—Chresto 20

With their same speediness and accurate shooting, the Civics basketball team repeated last year's performance and captured the club tournament from the Chrestos, 41 to 20.

The game was a walkaway for the Kee-Ys, off to a fast start, the victor's baskets dropping in from all corners of the court. Never once were the Chrestos in the lead. Brandenburg and Beggs took first and second places, respectively, for point honors, Brandenburg with eleven and Beggs with eight. Herzoff led the Chrestos with six points.

BOYS GYM WORK

To open the boys gym work, Motor Quotient tests are taken by all the boys engaging in active gym work. These are tests of the students' physical abilities and also his knowledge pertaining to the rules, qualifications, and so forth in sports of all kinds. With the weather still warm to permit outside gym, speedball, touch football, and baseball are played at alternates for several weeks. About midway in the second semester, the annual gym class basketball tournament is held, which is usually followed by a similar tournament in volleyball.

However, time did not allow the latter to be held this year. Twelve teams compete, each gym class being divided into two groups, Class A and Class B. Tournament games are held every night after school. While speaking of tournaments, it might be well to say something of the free throw tournament, usually held under Coach Stevens' supervision. The winner this year was Dick Hine, sinking 31 out of 48. Following closely behind was Alvin Brodkey. The prize to the winner was a pair of basketball shoes.

To break the monotony of basketball and to teach the student to defend himself, the fundamentals of boxing and wrestling are then taken up for about two weeks. A game which is comparatively new is also played. It is called batball, the rules of which are similar to those of baseball, except the fist and volleyball are substituted for a bat and ball.

Another group which deserves recognition is the gym helpers. Those who are members of the interscholastic athletic teams are usually awarded these positions. Their duties are to check out towels and equipment, keep the locker room in order, and often to officiate in the class contests.

TENNIS

In bringing to you the fall tennis tournament of 1935, the school champion is uncovered. Two out of three sets are played, except in the semi-finals and finals, when three out of five sets were played. There were no certain qualifications and the matches are played on any courts available. Surviving in the sami-finals from the twenty-four contestants were Brandenburg, Loe, Thibodeau, and Phil Everist. Loe and Brandenburg were matched, with Loe winning. Likewise, Everist won from Thibodeau. Loe and Everist remained, Loe snatching the required number of sets to capture the school tennis crown.

GYM CLASS TRACK

As the 1936 gym class track got under way, the Honor Roll revealed that many of the previous records had been equaled or smashed. Under the supervision of Coach Stevens a lot of future track stars were foreseen by the watchful eye of the gym class adviser. The honor roll is is follows: Those making the 75-yard in less than 9 seconds are: John Harris, Robert Mohr, Walter Binnebose, Ivan Boyles, James Lane, and Dale Cunningham. In the 220-yard dash four boys did exceptionally well by timing under 29 seconds. They are: Gordon Sweeley, Robert Mohr, Lawrence Hayes, Ralph Betsworth. In the 440-yard relay the team composed of Rounds, Boyles, Betsworth, and Marx smashed last year's record by finishing in 54.6 seconds. In the weight division Harry Elsberg, hefty football tackle, gained a place in the shot put list by heaving it 37 feet, 7 inches. Those heaving it over 33 feet are: John Harris, Bob Moe, and Robert Trulsak. In the mile run, Howard McIntyre, John Scott, Robert Marx, and Burdean Tompkins timed 6 minutes. In the high jump those topping 4 feet, 11 inches are: Ed Bernoski, Robert Mohr, Earl Reesen, and Ed Thornton.

GIRLS GYM

During the year hundreds of girls participated in the intramural program under the careful supervision of Miss Strickler. The program offered the fundamentals of volleyball, basketball, tennis, tumbling, track, and even baseball. Comparatively new games, such as shuffle board, ring tennis, and badminton were also played. Undoubtedly two of the latter will need an explanation. Ring tennis is played with the identical rules of volleyball with the exception, of course, as you might have guessed, a round hard rubber ring is used in place of a volleyball. Badminton is played under the rules of tennis, with a slightly different racket and a cord ball adorned with feathers, the purpose of which is to make it as light as possible.

Volleyball held the spotlight for most of the year and as usual a class tournament was held, at the end of which an all star team was chosen. Careful consideration was given in the selection of the following team: Anna Palmolia, Lucille Bishop, Nina Karroll, Jennie Carlson, Dorothy Barcol, Ann Beckwith, Marion Larson, Jeanne Baldes, and Eleanor Luse. Next the girls turned their eyes to basketball. As in volleyball, two teams were chosen to represent each gym class in the annual tournament. Following several weeks of concentration on this sport came the tournament. The class champs were from the fifth period class and consisted of Shirley Mae Tickman, Maxine Shook, Nina Karroll, Bernice Eatinger, Jeannette Persinger, and Ethel Koser. Likewise, an all star basketball team was chosen. They were as follows: Marion Krone, Margie Towney, Nina Karroll, Bernice Eatinger, Shirley Mae Tickman, and Jeannette Persinger.

Next the attention was turned to three games that were played at alternates for several weeks: table tennis, badminton, and shuffleboard. To increase the interests of the girls, matches were held during classes and after school. Singles and doubles champions were proclaimed in all three. In the table tennis division the singles were won by Eleanor Rosofsky and doubles by Peggy Arthur and Jane Knupp. Badminton singles, the game like tennis, were won by Patricia Ebersole. In the double matches Jane Pryor and Mildred Wanders were the winners. Maxine Shook took the shuffleboard honors in a tight contest with Margaret Kindgren and Patsy Ryan in the doubles.

As in the boys' gym work, gym helpers are an important factor in the functioning of the daily tasks.

Girls who have completed the required two semesters of physical training usually apply for these positions. The most promising from this list of volunteers were selected by Miss Strickler to aid her in conducting her classes. No credit is given these girls toward graduation but they learn the finer points of class management in this way, and they really put forth an effort to do so, often remaining after school for various tasks. Their duties are practically the same as the boys, keeping the locker room in order, checking equipment in and out, and officiating in class games. They are: Gertrude Heppe, Grace Noreen, Margaret Wilson, Waneta Ward, Lillian Leckband, Helen Williams, Patricia Ebersole, Jane Pryor, Jeannette Houchins, Olga Keriakedes, Shirley Henry, and Mildred Wanders.

Following work in tumbling for a week or so, baseball and track events were taken up toward the close of the semester.

ALL FOR CENTRAL

In any school there are always a few students who stand out from the others. In the 1936 Maroon and White these students, ten of them, are classified under "All for Central". The five girls and five boys whose pictures appear on this and the following page possess the keys which fit most perfectly into the lock of happiness.

As president of National Honor Society, Palmer Finsvick demonstrated his scholastic ability, as the able president of Chrestomathian his popularity, and as business manager of the Record his executive talents. Quill and Scroll also claimed Palmer's membership. His record shall stand as a challenge to many, a record that will take a plus amount of ability and personality to duplicate.

One of the most outstanding students of the June graduating class is Katherine Hampe. Her ability and popularity are well conveyed by membership in Castle Commercial Club, Parnassus, Quill and Scroll, International Relations Club, Senior Chorus, Girls' Glee Club, and Philomathian Literary Society. She also held the secretaryship of both Latin Club and French Club, and was the able treasurer of both Friendship Club and Inner Circle. Katherine has also served on the Courtesy Committee and two years as a capable member of the Maroon and White staff.

To find a super abundance of energy; an extra quantity of cooperative spirit; a desire to achieve; a pleasant personality; and a quality of leadership possessed by few, in a quiet individual, one can say he has a rare specimen of humanity. Yet these characteristics can all be found in Marjorie Howard the Editor in Chief of the 1936 Maroon and White. Marjorie had time to devote to such organizations as Art Club, of which she was secretary, vice president of Quill and Scroll, Parnassus, Friendship, Castle Commercial Club, National Honor Society, International Relations Club, and president of Hesperian Literary Society, demonstrating the statement as to her abundance of energy. This lovable lass will leave a vacancy in Central High when she graduates in June that will be hard to fill.

Initiative and capability are synonymous with Bob Knoepfler's name. He is probably best known as editor of the Record, and vice president of the Civics Literary Society. Besides having the lead in the June class play, Bob also participated in inter-club debate, while French Club, Student Forum and Parnassus claim him as a member. Naturally, with all of these activities, Bob was elected as a member of the National Honor Society.

Nash Maxeiner Finsvik Sacks Weaver

One of the most popular and well liked girls at Central is Dorothy Maxeiner. Her prominence in school affairs is shown by the fact that she was president of Quill and Scroll, editor of the Record, and a member of National Honor Society. Other honors which she has to her credit are membership in the Philomathian Literary Society, Friendship Club, Inner Circle, Student Forum, and the secretaryship of Parnassus.

Although excelling to a high degree in the world of sports, Junior Nash has many other honors of which to be proud. Besides participating in football, basketball, and track, he has been president of the Civics Literary Society, president and secretary of Hi-Y, and vice president of Spanish Club. Parnassus also claims Junior as a member.

Another outstanding personage in our Castle is Newton Sacks. Besides being president of both Chrestomathian Literary Society and Parnassus, Newton was also a member of Castle Kamera Club, International Relations Club, and National Honor Society. He also served on the Annual board, the Courtesy Committee, and in the band, besides taking part in the class play and inter-club and interscholastic debate.

Grades, popularity, and accomplishments suggest, of course, Ruth Serrill. Membership in Castle Commercial Club, Choir, Senior Chorus, Dramatic Club, Friendship Club, and Inner Circle naturally led to her induction into National Honor Society. Ruth also has been the president of Latin Club, vice president of Creative Writers' Club, and secretary of both Hesperian Literary Society and National Honor Society. She has also served as literary editor on the Annual board for one year, and has participated both in the opera and inter-club declamatory.

Melvin Sogge, popular June class president, is a well-known football and basketball star. Having been treasurer of Hi-Y, secretary of Civics Literary Society, and a member of Parnassus, Melvin rightly earns a place on this page.

Jean Phyllis Weaver, better known as Jeanie, is a popular young lady of our Castle. Her accomplishments include membership in Friendship Club and Inner Circle, and she also has been secretary of National Honor Society, and treasurer of Hesperian Literary Society. Her musical abilities are shown by the fact that she was a member of the chorus and the A Capella Choir, and participated in the opera.

The honor which these ten students have received is of the highest nature. They have been selected by a committee of three members of the faculty from the students in the mid-year and June classes. A high record in scholarship is required for eligibility, but loyalty, service, and fine character are very essential. To these honored students, we offer our highest congratulations.

Oct. 4—The Little Maroons battered down the Fort Dodger's line with the score 25 to 0.

Oct. 10—That was a keen pep assembly—movie stars in our midst! Well, one never knows.

Oct. 11—"What did you do during the short vacation?" We slept!! Our vote is for more and longer teacher's conventions.

October 12—The Kentucky mountaineers must have been on the forty-yard line, because the Omaha Tech team was certainly shot when it was over. The second team also came out victorious against Vermillion to the tune of 32 to 0. Opera leads were announced.

WHITHER TOMORROW?

Many statesmen and economists are pessimistic. They see little ahead to hearten our youth. Let not this dismay you who are graduating. The same pessimistic thoughts prevailed only fifty years ago. Statesmen and economists then bemoaned the future. In their judgment, business, finance and agriculture had been developed to its peak. Then followed the greatest era of expansion in the history of the nation. They did not dream of the giant automobile industries, they failed to foresee great highway systems, mighty radio enterprises and the countless other developments of recent times. While no one knows what tomorrow will unfold, we do believe that the future has many good things in store for the youth of today. Keen young minds will, as in the past, open new avenues and march ahead!

Oct. 18—It seems that most of us knights and ladies have been fashioning our keys rather well, for Pop told us in assembly that the report cards look pretty good. We're still rather leery, though. We don't want to brag, but I guess our football team is pretty good. Anyhow Denison was defeated 19 to 6.

Oct. 21—"Don't faint, those grades are good!" Yes, report cards were given out. Centralites enjoyed a presentation of light opera selections, given by the University players of Des Moines.

Oct. 24—"Whom did you get?" "Did she sign—?" "If you don't sign—we'll scalp you!" You've guessed it, club elections.

Oct. 25—Those amateur artists—On! Our pep gets better and better. Keep up the good work at the game. The clubs honored (?) the new members at the joint.

Oct. 26—The Homecoming parade was led by Margaret Ann Dahl, the newly elected queen, with Betty Miller, a Philo, as maid of honor. Heps won the prize for the best float with Quintuplets. The scrubs beat LeMars 19-14. That's another good omen. But the fates were evidently against us. Anyhow, Lincoln remained undefeated after the game. They prevailed to the tune of 8-0.

Oct. 30—We all like Shakespeare better, after that assembly. Wasn't that grand acting?

Nov. 1—The first C. C. C. party of the year. A good time was had by all. Another scalp to our credit! The Little Maroons beat Sioux Falls 12-6.

Nov. 6—The commercial students enjoyed a typing exhibition by Chester Soucek.

Nov. 7—The mid-year class selections were tonight. Dallas Williams was elected president. The other officers are: Margaret Ann Dahl, vice president; Mavis Laybourn, secretary; and Lyle Bower, treasurer.

Nov. 8—East certainly played humorous parts in the grand pep assembly preceding the annual contest for city honors. However, it didn't seem to make any difference about the second team. East won 13-0.

Nov. 9—The big day! Everyone held his breath for a while, but Central prevailed 18-13.

Nov. 11—The speaker for the Armistice Day assembly was Miss Uldine Utley. We had a half-holiday.

Nov. 14—There was an assembly to commemorate education week with Dr. Edward Steiner of Grinnell, as a speaker. June class elections were held. Melvin Sogge, president; Alice Cusack, vice president; Don Jacobsen, secretary; and Catherine Summers, treasurer, are the new officers.

Nov. 16—The game between Central and South Omaha was held at Omaha. Central prevailed to the tune of 13-0.

Nov. 18—Another open house at Central!

Nov. 21—Wasn't the skit from the opera cute? I'm surely going, aren't you? It looks as though it will be a big success.

Nov. 22—Are you still alive after that mad scramble for opera seats? The all-school Thanksgiving dance will be held in the gym tonight. Door prizes for the lucky girl and boy!

Nov. 26-27—The opera was a big success both nights, with Harriet Cowell a lovely Princess Mary, and Leverett Jacobi a humorous King Henry the Eighth.

Nov. 28-Dec. 1—Vacation for Thanksgiving with lots of eats and time to sleep.

Dec. 2-4—The annual Interclub Debate and Declamatory Contest took place. Philo won the Declams with four victories to its credit. Hep had two victories. Elite won the Debates with two wins, while Chresto had only one.

Dec. 6—We were entertained at an assembly by a complimentary program given by the dramatic and music departments of the University of South Dakota. Another club election and joint has gone by with more people made happy by bids.

Dec. 10—Tryouts for the mid-year class play got under way with many trying out.

Dec. 12—We were entertained by another in our series of special assemblies. This one was given by Karl Krayon, who delighted us all with his clever chalk talk.

Dec. 13—At last we know who the new cheer leaders are: Lucille Gibbons, Mary Belle Moore, James Simpson, George Addison. They led us in yells at a peppy assembly this afternoon to start the basketball season right. The assembly evidently did some good because the boys defeated Hawarden 20-10.
